Carter expresses desire to help farmers

Agricultural trade situation exposed

By DIETER KRIEG
WASHINGTON, D.C. - Thirty editors of American agricultural journalism were given a brief glimpse of the status of world agricultural trade last week when they met with Carter administration officials on Sept. 30. Represented in the group were Lancaster Farming's editor, Dieter Krieg, and Mildred Bunting, managing editor of the Lancaster Livestock Reporter. The occasion was a 6-hour series of meetings with government administrators, including President Carter himself.

On the one hand it was revealed that beef imports will continue to be a "safety valve" to the Administration if domestic production reaches a point where meat prices are thought to be too high. "If beef prices start rising, they may be countered with imports," stated Julius Katz, assistant secretary of state for economic and business affairs. When challenged on that statement with the message that American cattlemen can produce enough beef to meet consumers needs - especially in view of the current low feed prices - Katz countered that the criterion for beef imports is price. If the price goes beyond what the Administration considers to be reasonable, then imports may very well come into play. Reluctant to predict more imports, Katz acknowledged "there is that possibility in the law."

On the other hand, American tobacco growers will likely be shut out of the world tobacco market. The simple reason is that American tobacco is possibly priced too high for the world market, Katz explained.

Another revelation which came out of the government briefings, held in both the White House's Cabinet Room and the Old Executive Office Building, was that "it is not practical to look for certainties."

That statement was made by Richard R. Wyrrough, from the Office of Panamanian Affairs. He was part of the program and addressed himself to con-

Meeting with some of the nation's farm editors a day after he signed the 1977 Farm Bill, President Carter expressed general satisfaction with the measure, saying he had no reluctance about signing it.

County agents from area win nat'l. recognition

HARTFORD, Conn. - Nearly 300 county Extension agents were honored here Tuesday, as "America's best agricultural communicators."

They are state, regional, and national winners in the 1977 Public Information Awards Program of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents (NACAA). Included were several from southeastern-southcentral Pennsylvania and neighboring areas.

John Kirch, director of marketing, and Dan Chisholm, manager of trade relations, Amchem Products, Inc., Ambler, Penn., presented certificates and cash awards ranging from $25 to $350.

The awards banquet Oct. 4 was a part of NACAA's 62nd annual meeting here.

Winning county agents were cited for "excellence in the use of mass media in publicizing important programs for the betterment of the agricultural community."

The information program was started under Amchem's sponsorship in 1968 with only 665 entries. Participation was up to 1,796 this year - a record. State, regional and national judges have examined and critiqued 12,176 communications efforts by county agents during the program's ten-year history.

Virgil Adams, Extension news editor at the University of Georgia and 1977 chairman of NACAA's Public Information Committee, announced national winners in seven classes: radio program, photo news stories, series of colored slides, feature stories, direct mail pieces, newsletters and personal columns.

National winners from Pennsylvania and neighboring states included:

John Z. Shearer, Chambersburg, first place with a

Farm equipment manufacturers crystalball 1978

HOT SPRINGS, Va. - The farm equipment industry expects to feel the impact of depressed wheat and corn prices on its overall business in the coming year, even though some segments of agriculture will be in a strong position in 1978.

Outlook statements from industry leaders at the 84th annual convention of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute held here at The Homestead last week anticipate weak corn and wheat prices might result in overall lower farm equipment sales in the year ahead.

The industry has experienced generally strong demand for most of its major products in recent years, but Robert E. Kidder, president of White Farm Equipment Company, said "the days of 'is it available?' are gone."

"Even though total farm cash receipts in the United States are likely to increase another three per cent in 1978, the low prices for important crops such as wheat and corn are exerting cost-price pressures on many farmers," Chairman William A. Hewitt of Deere & Company said.

"As a result we anticipate that industry sales of farm equipment may be lower in the coming year. This means our industry is going to be even more competitive than at any time since the early 1970's and the performance of individual companies more dependent than ever on their ability to market in this competitive climate."

Ben H. Warren, president of International Harvester's agricultural equipment group, said depressed commodity prices will continue into 1978 and "we

Pennfield introduces computerized feed mill

By DIETER KRIEG
LANCASTER - Grinding feed has come a long, long way from the days when I was a small boy in Germany. I can still vividly recollect standing beneath the heavy timber arms of a windmill and watching them turn with the wind. They seemed awesomely powerful and creaked under the strain. The wind provided easy power, but you could tell from the groaning of timbers and cogs that the work was tough. And inside this wind-driven mill were men who labored just as hard. It was fascinating to watch.

Now, 25 years later, I find myself marveling at how a modern mill operates. The perfect example of modern milling can be found right here in Lancaster County. Specifically, it's the recently completed Pennfield Mill in the Hempfield Industrial Park, east of Lancaster. It's a sight to behold, both inside and out.

Yesterday evening, and again today, Pennfield Corporation introduced the highly advanced mill to its employees, customers, and invited guests. What they saw was one of the largest and progressive milling operations in the country. Standing 170 feet tall, the mill features computerized mixing, storage and transfer systems.

Although one might catch a good stiff breeze atop the 170-foot structure on some days, this mill doesn't depend on the wind for any of its power. Instead, electric motors with 2000 combined horsepower do the work. The mill hums with activity, churning out more than 1000 tons of feed per day. At that rate, the operation consumes 20,000 bushels of corn and

From calf to cow, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

Are you in the dairy business to stay?

Are you ready to devote an hour or so of your time planning for a more profitable future?

If your answer to both questions is yes, you owe it to yourself to read what we have to say.

Unlike many other feed companies, we develop custom feeding programs for each individual dairy.

It all starts with a Pennfield man reviewing your total operation with you. Your goals. Your records. The health and overall condition of your milking cows and young stock. Your management practices. Your roughage feeding program. And other factors that have an effect on your profit potential.

We also conduct laboratory analysis of the roughages you feed to determine their nutrient content.

With the aid of computers, we then design a balanced feeding program specifically tailored to your operation and goals—a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

For example, while using a Pennfield customized feeding program, 30 herds this past year averaged 1,688 lbs. more milk and 64 lbs. more fat per cow than the previous year.

There is no cost—or obligation—for this unique service. But you must take the first step by writing or phoning us. Do it today.

Put it all together!

The Babcock B-300V is rapidly reestablishing herself as the world's top layer. Egg producers with flocks well into production are reporting performance they haven't seen for years... from any layer. In many cases, in fact, they are reporting their best performance ever.

But in this business, potential is only half the game. Babcock backs its bird with the most professional, experienced distribution team in the egg industry.

Consider these features:

PRODUCT

The B-300V rates "excellent" in all key indicators of profitable performance.

- * EGG PRODUCTION -- The B-300V peaks high and early, for quick recovery of your costs, and early profitability. Her persistency after peak translates to top egg production.
- * FEED CONVERSION -- The B-300V has a proven ability to efficiently convert feed to eggs. From 1966, until 1973 when she was withdrawn from Random Sample Tests, she was the top average feed converter in the industry.
- * LIVABILITY -- Field results from all B-300V flocks in production since her reintroduction in late '76 indicate she may have far-and-away the best livability in the business.
- * EGGSHELL QUALITY -- Eggshell strength is one of the greatest assets of the 1977 B-300V. Between 1972 and 1976, shell strength of eggs produced by B-300V's has improved by a measured 15% in early lay (36 weeks) and 30.8% in late lay (68 weeks).
- * RESISTANCE TO STRESS -- We call it "manageability". The B-300V is a calm, adaptable bird. She resists environmental stresses and recovers rapidly from management problems.
- * SERVICE -- The Babcock distribution team has developed service programs to provide each individual grower or egg producer with the optimum product for his specific operation:
- * DELIVERY -- Careful, on-time and courteous.
- * QUALITY PRODUCTS -- Birds are hatched and/or grown with Babcock technical assistance. Uniform, healthy chicks and started pullets are vaccinated for your area challenges, and are correctly and fully-developed for their age.
- * SERVICE -- Experienced, professional service is available before, during and after delivery.
- * FLEXIBILITY -- Babcock distributors are equipped to supply the needs of your operation, whatever the size of your order. Cage or floor grown started pullets are available, depending on the needs of your program.

Talk to a professional about your next replacement flock. The businessmen behind the businessman's bird have a performance package tailored to your chick or started pullet program.

Quality and service. Put it all together with Babcock!

The pullet during this period is like a sprinter, accelerating rapidly from no eggs to peak production in a very few days. Remember it's the flock as an average, not the individual hen, that requires eight to nine weeks to reach peak production. Note the influence of the rate of sexual maturity on flock peak production as shown in Table 1.

Table 1: Effect of Sexual Maturity on Peak Production		Percent Production by Week From Onset of Sexual Maturity
% of Flock Laying First Egg	Week	21	22	23	24	25	26	27	28	29

There is a lot of information as well as misinformation about this period in the pullet's life.

BIO LAYENA INTAKE GUIDES

BIO LAYENA ¹	PRE PEAK ² (18-28 wks) In House Daily Maximum Temperature	POST PEAK ² (28 wks.+) Feed Intake Lbs/100 Hens/Day
Bio Layena 100	Below 60°F	Over 25.0
Bio Layena 107	60-70°F	23.4 to 25.0
Bio Layena 114	70-80°F	21.7 to 23.3
Bio Layena 121	80-90°F	20.0 to 21.6
Bio Layena 128	Above 90°F	Under 20.0 lbs.

¹ The numbers after the Bio Layena rations indicate the Purina Bio-Rating. Each subsequent ration contains 7 per cent extra amino acid, vitamin and mineral fortification over the previous one. For example, Bio Layena 114 contains 7 per cent more fortification than Bio Layena 107 and 14 per cent more than Bio Layena 100.

² Values are guides only since feed use varies due to wastage, strains, etc. Use local judgement as when to change rations.

The key is to match a level of ration fortification that will provide the nutrient intake that a particular house of layers needs without any shortages or expensive and excessive overages. To do this weekly records of feed intake are necessary. Such records will return much more than effort involved to maintain them.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

BY DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

Presidential impressions

With all due respect to President Carter, the Presidency has lost something if first impressions are any indication. It may be the way the man from Georgia wants it to be, but it disappointed most of the 30 farm editors from across the country whom he invited to the Executive Mansion on Sept. 30. Many of them had been to the White House before to meet leaders of previous administrations.

I, for one, can only compare him to former President Gerald Ford, who hosted a similar group of farm editors in April of 1976.

The very first impression Carter makes is that he is attempting to be very thorough with his management of government and grooming of an image. It's something Americans have come to know since before the election last Fall. Carter must be given credit, for example, for his reaching out to groups such as farm editors and for his expressed desire to work for a better America. That's a hollow statement, however, since most of us left the White House briefing Sept. 30 wondering why in the world we were there.

Granted, an invitation to the White House is not taken lightly. Regardless of which party is in power, it's an honor and all of us felt privileged to share the President's company. I'm sure we give Carter credit for trying, but somehow many of us expected a little more than that. We got it from Carter's predecessor.

To this writer, at least, the image of the Presidency fell when the President walked into the Cabinet Room, where we were gathered to meet with him. The initial reaction is, of course, "There he is... the President," but somehow something was missing.

During the campaign for the Presidency, Carter capitalized on the common image with which most people could easily identify.

Now, as this nation's chief executive, he unknowingly or deliberately carries that image along with him. If one 30-minute meeting can be used as a measurement of leadership qualities, Carter scores significantly lower than the man he replaced. Ironically, former President Ford was often criticized as a man who was too much of a nice guy and not enough of a leader. To this writer, that assessment is completely turned around. The former President not only conveyed the image of being a nice guy, he came across as an able statesman and knowledgeable leader. Ford impressed his audience of farm writers with his knowledge of even remote agricultural issues while Carter failed to make such a dynamic impression.

The President and his office deserve respect. This editorial is not intended to be disrespectful, but rather an assessment and comparison of two visits to the White House.

The image of the Presidency fell when Carter walked into the Cabinet Room because he entered completely unannounced. A door opened, and there he was, a few seconds later he was sitting in his chair. With Ford, on the other hand, a White House aide preceded Ford's entrance with the announcement: "Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States." Is that too much formality and courtesy, to warrant abandonment of the practice? I think not. In my opinion, it took something away from the Presidency, as well as the President. For those who may want to argue that cutting this kind of formality out of government is part of Carter's plan to reduce the federal payroll, I have the news. According to a recent article in U.S. News and World Report, Carter added 66,763 people to the federal payroll during his first eight months in office. The former President, surprisingly enough, reduced his inherited figure by 42,604 during his first eight months in office. Clearly, this serves as one example that we're not getting what was promised. Carter really hasn't been all that more willing to hold news conferences either, than was Ford. Again, during their first eight months in office, Carter has held 14 news conferences while Ford had 12. Ford had 296 bills signed into law at the end of his first eight months in office, while Carter scored 116.

THORNS ON THE FRUIT TREE

Lesson for October 9, 1977

Background Scripture:
Luke 6:43-49

Devotional Reading:
Matthew 7:21-29

Many Christians today seemed obsessed with Satan.

They look for him in every nook and cranny - particularly their neighbor's nook and cranny! As some of our forefathers imperiled their own souls with their inquisitions and witch-hunts, so there are many who are today "hooked on" the Devil.

Whenever these people find themselves in some theological or doctrinal disagreement with another follower of Christ, they begin to sanctimoniously wonder-out-loud whether their "brother" might not be the "tool of Satan"? Let their fellow Christian perform some act that puzzles them or fails to fit into their own prescribed Christian lifestyle and they begin to invent the words, "counterfeit works of the Devil!"

Of figs and thorns

The problem here is not that there is no evil in the world, no demonic force, for Jesus himself acknowledged this reality. But, though he acknowledged the reality, he did not focus upon it. What he focused on was the Spirit of God working in the world. He chose to accentuate the positive - God's presence and power - instead of the negative disposition to see Satan wherever he looked.

The key to this approach was extremely pragmatic.

There were no chemical, psychological or mechanical tests or devices to determine who or what had the demon.

So, Jesus employed a simple but profound rule-of-thumb: "For no good tree bears bad fruit, nor again does a bad tree bear good fruit; for each tree is known by its own fruit" (Luke 6:43,44). The proof was to be found not in our judgement of each other's theology, doctrines and religious lifestyles, but by our evaluation of the fruits that issue from these. In other words, a lifestyle that bears good fruit, that issues a loving service to our fellowman must be a good tree. Thorns do not bear fruits. Satan-possessed people do not live loving, redemptive lives.

Why call me Lord?

For me the only test of the authenticity of another's faith must be its fruitfulness. If a person comes to me with a "new discovery" in his spiritual life, claiming "I've found it!", who am I to question the particulars of that spiritual style so long as it is productive of Christlike love and service? Of course, if you really have "found it," then the obvious results should be a humility and love that finds its fruition, not in judging others, but in serving them.

Because the term "Lord" means one to whom we give our obedience, there is nothing more ludicrous than a Christian who runs around saying "Lord, Lord," but doesn't live the redemptive life to which he or she is called. If we are truly Christians who have found our Lord, we will not only hear and know his words, but we will do them and there will be no thorns on our fruit tree.

TO PLAN FOR NEXT YEAR'S CORN CROP

It's that season of the year to plan for next year's crop of golden ears since the harvest at present is pretty well along. Corn growers can now see the results of the planning, fertilizing, planting, pest control efforts and related practices in producing the crop coming out of the fields. What contributed to the success of satisfying yields or possibly lowered the final outcome? It is often a question of adding the pluses and minuses to determine the results. Evaluate what was done right and subtract the things which may have gone wrong. The corn borer worked overtime this growing season. Weed control was erratic. Rainfall distribution was uneven. Many factors determined the success of the crop.

TO BREAK DAIRY HEIFERS INTO HERD EARLY

Working dairy heifers into the milking string routines often presents a problem or two. At best, a heifer must undergo a great amount of stress at the time of her first calving. Add to this the new experience she must undergo to join the milking herd. The result frequently is a frustrated, excited animal. A good way to make the transition a lot easier for both the heifer and the dairyman is to introduce the expectant "cow" into the herd 2 to 4 weeks before she freshens. This will allow her to become accustomed to her herdmates, the new feeding schedule, milking and all other routines gradually without the stress of calving. After she freshens the only real new experience will be the application of the milking machine. Likely, she won't rebel over that routine.

TO SOW THE WHEAT CROP

Weather always plays a key role in the production of any crop. After the weather-related problems of last fall, it should be imperative to take advantage of any breaks in the present fall season to put in the wheat. We are presently in a favorable situation to take advantage of existing conditions. The fly-free date of October 10th can almost be ignored since most wheat varieties now have Hessian fly resistance. Sowing wheat soon will insure adequate fall growth before cold weather arrives.

TO ENJOY THE FALL SEASON

Autumn has a lot of pleasant delights to enjoy and participate in. Those chilly, somewhat longer nights, and sunny days have an invigorating effect on us as the season's shift gears. On the home and garden fronts there is an extra measure of eagerness to get the last of the harvest safely gathered in ere the winter storms begin. "Many hands make light work", is an old adage brought into good use here in the Fall. The beauty of this season shows everywhere.

Woodlands, road and hillsides, are splashed with their Autumn hues. Windshield surveys of favorite trees and shrubs in their full colorful glory can easily be spotted and admired. Lawns, hay fields and pastures, soon to be joined by newly sown small grains, take on a deeper green as a result of rains and cooler growing conditions to which all grasses respond favorably. Fall beauty is everywhere in the great outdoors. Take time to enjoy it.

Omaha Cattle

Omaha, Nebraska
October 6, 1977

Compared with end previous week's close.

Closing prices on slaughter steers and heifers were 1.00-1.50 higher. Cows were 50-1.00 higher and bulls firm.

Four day receipts 13,800 as compared 13,000 previous week and 12,200 a year ago. The upward trend on slaughter steers and heifers extended into the third successive week with upturns supported by moderate marketings and heifer prices on carcass beef at the wholesale level. With the return of favorable weather conditions, harvest operations often claimed first priority and there was no particular seller pressure to move the available supply of market-ready cattle in the face of an advancing market. Much of the steer supply was of good to average-choice grade; the heifer supply outnumbered steers and the overall finish was noticeable more attractive with a liberal percentage choice included. Slaughter steers made up approximately 28 pct. and heifers 31 pct. Cows accounted for 6 pct and the largest feeder run of the season 33 pct.

STEERS: At Midweek high time, load and part load choice and prime 3-4 1199-1236 lbs. 43.85-44.00. Choice 2-4 1000-1250 lbs. 42.00-43.50. Load 3 1100 lbs. 43.75, load choice and Prime 3-4, large share 4, 1243 lbs. 43.25. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3

Jimmy Carter says he can almost guarantee that American agriculture will be solidly represented at world food fairs in upcoming years. That has not been the case thus far. The President says he wants to expand such promotional programs, thereby giving American farmers the opportunity to market more of their products in foreign lands.

siderations as to why Americans should favor the Carter Administrations treaty regarding the Panama Canal. Noting that a fifth on this country's agricultural exports move through the Canal, Wyrough said he does not see any danger of American agribusiness losing this waterway. The treaties, he affirmed, give assurance of that. The group of editors, however, was reluctant to buy that and asked for proof or guarantees. That prompted Wyrough's concluding statement - "It is not practical to look for certainties."

Speaking about the latest developments at OSHA - that much maligned agency which concerns itself with health and safety on the farm, as well as in industry and elsewhere - Harrison Wellford reported that the Administration is placing greater emphasis on major health hazards and less on small safety concerns. Wellford, who works as executive associate director for reorganization and management in the Office of Management and Budget, also said that government reorganization will continue to take shape. It's feasible that some agricultural agencies will be merged in the future, although that's not yet definite.

One of the questions which was on the farm editors' minds was whether or not the U S State Department is getting a larger role in agriculture. Katz answered that question with the words "No, it hasn't changed a bit." It was noted, however, that two of six speakers (not including President Carter and USDA Secretary Bergland) were from the State Department. Two more were from the Office of Management and Budget, while the others had connections with agriculture.

learned that Carter favors increased agricultural trade and is looking particularly at Red China. He expressed strong willingness to give American agriculture more exposure, world-wide. Talking to the editors just a day after he signed the 1977 Farm Bill, the President expressed general satisfaction with the measure. "I didn't have any reluctance about signing it," he stated.

The President commented that he didn't think his support among American farm families was varying much, adding: "I do think that the new legislation I have helped to provide will be an indication that the farm families can trust me, not only to understand their problems but to carry out my campaign commitments."

Adding a little humor to the half-hour meeting, the President at one point remarked: "When I wasn't in office, I used to cuss the President and Secretary of Agriculture when my crop was poor. And when it was good, of course I didn't give the President and the Secretary of Agriculture any credit for it. I figured it was because of me."

"I don't think any of our polling results indicate that I have lost support in the Farm Belt. The farmers are disturbed, and I am disturbed as well. We have had a complete total failure

FEED SILAGE EASIER . . . FASTER

Weaverline's self-propelled self-unloading feed carts save half the time of manual feeding. Choose the big Model 224, 30 bushel cart for big barns. Tight corners? Choose the compact Model 223, 24 bushel cart. Both Models are only 33" wide to fit thru most any doorway. Because Weaverline takes the electric route, you get the job done quietly, without noxious fumes.

Go Weaverline for safety reasons too! Cart stops instantly if operator lets go of traction clutch . . . or if cart bumps against him in reverse travel. Sturdy bumper protects cart from damaging impacts.

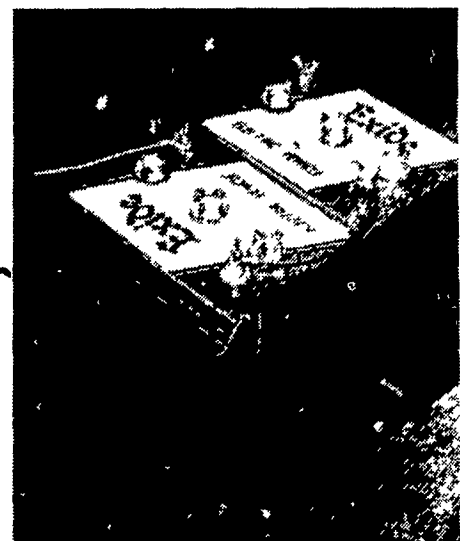

6-speed control for the flow you want

Fingertip control rod at right handle has 8 positions—for starting augers and beaters and for 6 different control speeds. The Cart features high-low shift for both forward and reverse travel. U-Bar is the traction clutch; pull and cart goes, release and it stops. Knob at center activates augers.

Simple, trouble-free feeding action

Three upper augers serve as beaters to keep silage from bridging and assure steady downward movement. Bottom auger is the feeder, forcing silage out to the left and into the manger. Delivery chain and crossbars push the silage forward into the augers.

Easy servicing with roll-out power pack

View shows two of four 6-volt batteries mounted in an easy-access drawer. Slides to the right for servicing batteries shown . . . then out the opposite side for servicing the other two. A special plug receptacle is located at the base of the control box in rear of cart—right where you want it for convenient recharging of the power pack between feedings.

MEDICINE AND MANAGEMENT

By CARL TROOP, VMD

Acorns may cause stomach and financial woes

Many stories and tales have been told about "acorn poisoning" some true and some not. Ripe acorns are relatively nonpoisonous, at least substantially less poisonous than the green or unripe acorns or green oak leaves. Generally, even though all animals of a herd are on a common pasture only certain cows or a small part of the herd become ill. Younger animals especially seem to favor the fallen acorns (under certain conditions it may be the only feed), while most of the herd will pay little attention to them. Acorn poisoning usually occurs only in those years in which there is a rich crop of acorns, and then often only after storms with high winds or other violent weather when a large amount of acorns would fall at one time. A bad storm and discovery of an animal which apparently died suddenly may make one think of lightning, but acorn poisoning is another possibility. In ordinary years pastures with stands of oak trees do not present a problem.

Oak leaf or acorn poisoning has been described in Southeast Europe, England, Holland, France, Scandinavia, and the United States. Some of the indications for considering acorn poisoning are as follows.

1. Of most importance, of course, is the presence of oaks in the pasture with green leaves or acorns available to the animals.
2. Length of illness can vary from a few days to a month or more.
3. Temperature is usually normal.
4. Diarrhea and loss of body condition.
5. Lack of appetite.
6. The animal may stand with a lowered head, arched back, tight abdominal muscles as if experiencing some colicky pain.
7. Skin is dry, haircoat rough, eyes sunken.
8. Crusty secretions of the eyes and nose with a dry muzzle.

9. In most advanced cases there is no response to treatment.

It must be remembered, however, that not all cases need be that severe. Ingestion of only a few green acorns may produce only a slight loss of appetite, or even more subtle, just a decrease in milk production. Acorns have been blamed for prematurely drying cows up.

If any of these problems sound familiar, occasional cows off feed or sudden drop in milk for no apparent reason, check the pastures for noxious weeds as well as acorns. This seems to have been a reasonably good year for acorns, and if they and the cows can be kept apart, can be a good year for the cows, too.

New farm bill considered harmful

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "The new Farm Bill is a political compromise that may do more long-term harm than good to American agriculture," Allan Grant said here last week.

Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF), referred to the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, signed into law Sept. 29 by President Carter in a ceremony attended by Grant.

While supporting many of the basic concepts of the new law, some of which were the results of Farm Bureau recommendations, Grant said that he is concerned that the higher price support loans will interfere with efforts to expand foreign markets for American farm commodities.

"The new law may contain mechanisms that would put agriculture on a greased slide back to the kind of government programs that paid farmers not to produce," Grant said.

Neither farmers nor consumers want the kind of farm program in which the government becomes a major buyer, accumulating huge surpluses of grain to hang over and depress market prices, Grant said.

He added that farmers don't like such programs because they cause lower, politically controlled prices. Consumers dislike them because they resent government handouts to farmers.

The AFBF president said that the new law's disaster payment provisions are "significantly" improved over those of the previous law in that they are more flexible and realistic.

He also lauded the increased authorization for agricultural research funds to $890 million in fiscal 1978 and to $1.42 billion by 1982 as being "urgently needed" by farmers and future generations of consumers.

But Grant doesn't like many provisions of the food stamp part of the 1977 Act.

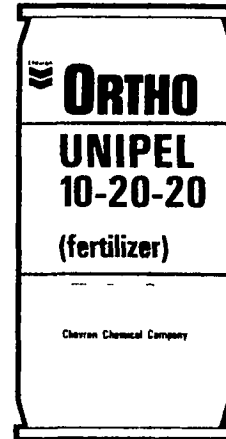

Especially irritating to the AFBF president is the elimination of the purchase requirement for food stamp recipients who, under the 1977 Act, will be handed free food stamps without putting up any money of their own.

"We support the food stamp concept as a means of assisting those truly in need," Grant said. "But, we think that only domestic food should be available for purchase with food stamps, and the emphasis should be on proper nutrition."

American Farm Bureau Federation is the nation's largest general farm organization with more than 2.6 million member-families.

Milk support price unchanged

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has announced that the support price for manufacturing milk will remain at $9.00 per hundredweight (82.3 per cent of parity) for the new marketing year beginning

Oct. 1. The announced price is for milk with a milkfat content of 3.67 per cent—the national average. The equivalent support price for 3.5 per cent milkfat content is $8.79. This action was taken as a result of a midyear of the dairy price support program which included a public comment period.

The Secretary also announced that the milk marketing year will be changed to Oct. 1-Sept.30, the first change since 1950 when the April 1-March 31 marketing was established. According to Department spokesmen, the change will enable the Secretary to make decisions regarding milk price support when more complete information on prospective feed supplies and prices is available for a full year ahead and should allow dairy producers to make better production decisions as they move into the more expensive barn-feeding season.

The Department will also increase manufacturing margins used by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) in calculating purchase prices of dairy products. This will provide better assurance that the average price received by dairy producers for manufacturing milk will at least equal the support price. The monthly average price received by producers has ranged from 28 cents per hundredweight below the support price in April to 20 cents below in August. The margins are being increased by the equivalent of 10 cents per hundredweight. As a result, CCC's purchase prices are being increased 1-1/4 cents per pound for butter, 1/2 cent for nonfat dry milk and 1 cent for cheese.

Cited as possible reasons for the shortfall in prices received by producers are increased manufacturing costs since the last margin

Bloomsburg poultry show a good one

BLOOMSBURG - "Best in Pennsylvania," was the opinion of poultry show judge, Woodrow McCann, Douglasville, in describing the Bloomsburg Fair's poultry show. The quality of entries was very good this year, he stated, noting that the local exhibition headed by John R. Klingerman was one of the cleanest he has seen.

Lee Hoch, Zionsville, took top prizes in both male and female bantams. The winning male was a Light Brahma and the best female, a Bearded Golden Polish.

One thousand sixty-five birds were entered in the show and it took Judge McCann just about 14 hours to complete his work. McCann has been judging the local show for a number of years. His activities have taken him to every state of the union as a judge over the past 30 years. He is a past president of the American Bantam Association.

Winners in the standard breeds were Boyd Smith, Kunkletown, who showed the best male, a Buff Plymouth Rock, and Cecil Rose, New Milford, who exhibited the best female, a Black Langshang.

Rabbit show

In the rabbit show, Larry Smith, East Muncy, showed the best buck, a Champagne D'Argent, while William Goff, Jr., New Milford, has the best doe, a Black Checkered Giant. There were 93 entries from six exhibitors. Harry Hurlbert, Binghamton, N.Y., was judge.

Pregnancies checked electronically

By DIETER KRIEG
PARADISE - Imagine checking 100 sows for pregnancy in 20 to 30 minutes. It's possible and nearly 99 per cent accurate with an electronic device which works on a sound wave principle.

Although such a sophisticated instrument was considered to be out of the realm of most swine breeders until just a few months ago, the hand-carried pregnancy probe has gone the way of the digital wrist watch and electronic pocket calculator. In other words, they've come down in price, and are thus an item of economic consideration on many farms.

One hog operation in this area which uses the device is Jet Age Swine Breeders, near here, owned by John Hess. Abe Fisher, president of the Lancaster County Hog Producers, is manager at the farm. During a recent visit with Lancaster Farming's editor, Fisher revealed that the lower cost pregnancy testers retail for around $500 to $600 now. Just a year ago they approached $1000. The model used at Jet Age Swine Breeders is a little more sophisticated than most and cost $1600 a year ago. A similar model can be purchased today for around $1265.

How does such an electronic pregnancy tester work? Fisher, who is involved in marketing the product, explains that it is based on reflections of ultrasonic sound waves. The more expensive models can be used to determine pregnancies in hogs and sheep, as well as measure backfat, muscling, and similar traits. All the operator has to do is hold a probe up to the lower, right rear abdomen, press a button, and take a reading on the scale. In a matter of seconds you know whether she's pregnant or not. What's more, it's nearly fool-proof. Out of more than 1000 head Fisher has tested to date at this farm, only 12 turned out to be false readings.

Fisher says he wouldn't want to be without one of the devices, which he claims is generating interest from a number of hog breeders in the area, including the Amish. "It tightens your reign on the sow herd, keeps your costs down, saves feed, and you make better use of your available space," Fisher commented.

The earliest recommended day for using the tester is 30 days after breeding, according to manufacturers and experienced users. It's thought to be the earliest and most positive way of determining pregnancy, short of the obvious sign when a sow or gilt comes back in heat. But suppose you miss her signs of heat, then you lose a minimum of three weeks, reasons Fisher. The only other alternative the breeder has is to "eyeball check" the herd. Although some swine producers claim to be able to diagnose pregnancies in this fashion two months after breeding, it may well take three months or even longer. That too, accounts for a lot of wasted time, feed, space and money, Fisher declares.

The Lancaster County hog producer believes the electronic device is now within the range of the medium size operator. He recommends it for consideration to anyone who has 100 or more sows in his herd. Jet Age Swine Breeders has a herd of 500. Some claims have been made that the unit can be justified with as few as 50 sows.

The device is battery operated and may be charged on regular house current. Very portable and compact, newer models are even equipped with a buzzer to tell you if she's bred or not. The more expensive models which may also be used on sheep are accurate in that species after the 35th day. Demonstrating the gadget's use, Fisher lectured: "You place the probe right in front of the flank, three inches above the teat line." There's no penetration or pain involved. Sows don't even appear irritated by it.

According to Fisher, the pregnancy probe is of more use to a man who has his sows and gilts bred in a pen, rather than the manager who prefers the stall method. He feels it's "very necessary" in an operation such as his where 150 sows are pen-bred per any given cycle.

"Gilts are a different story, too," Fisher continued. They come into heat any time during the 21-day period the boars are in with them. Sows, on the other hand, generally come into heat a couple of days after breeding, giving the owner a narrower time period during which to check them for pregnancy.

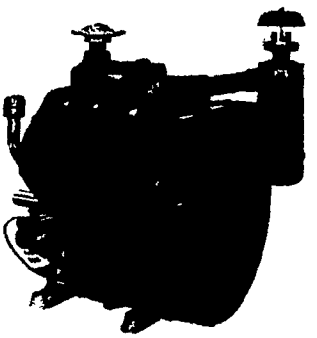

Abe Fisher can pregnancy check a sow in about 10 to 15 seconds.

Lehigh farmers want canal, but no dam

SEIPSTOWN - Members of the Lehigh County Farmers Association reaffirmed their opposition to the Trexler Dam Project on Sept. 30 when the group met near here for their annual meeting.

Attended by approximately 150 members, the group also gave consideration to PFA business policies, rural roads, land preservation, broken covenants, sludge dumping, farm machinery parts, farm exports, and the Panama Canal.

On the latter, the group voted that the United States keep possession of its right to the waterway, reports Minnie Young, Lehigh County information director for the Farmers Association. The group also favors expansion of the farm commodity export trade, wants the equipment industry to standardize parts, wants guidelines enforced for the dumping of sludge on farmland, favors a high priority on land preservation, and wants Pennsylvania's Department of Transportation (PennDOT) to remain responsible for the building and maintenance of secondary roads. The group further noted that PennDOT use its funds from motor vehicle registrations strictly for road and building and maintenance.

On the issue of broken covenants (Acts 519 and 319), the Farmers Association voted that all back taxes plus penalties and interest be returned to the school district, township, or county on the same proportions as it was leveled.

Guests for the evening included Gerard Szczypior, a young Polish farm engineer who is in the United States on a 4-H exchange program; state representatives William Klingeman, Frank Melusky, and Joseph Zeller. Szczypior gave a slide presentation on his native Poland.

Horse show held at fair

LAMPETER -

The West Lampeter Community Fair all western horse show was held September 30, as part of the program of the fair. Two champions of the show were chosen.

In the afternoon session, Sandy Hamilton, Lampeter, was named champion with Lashon Bussell, Manheim, winning reserve honors. A trophy was presented to the champion by John W. Eshelman & Sons.

In the evening session, the champion of the show was Ken Huber, Ronks, who also received a trophy from John W. Eshelman & Sons. George Schaeffer, Reiffton, was named reserve champion.

Judge for the show was Jeff Sheffer, Mountville, Pa.

Wendy Shaw sees bright farm future

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG - Wendy Shaw, who at age 16 is mastering all the skills of the show ring, has a bright outlook on the future of American agriculture. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shaw, Oley, she says agriculture is growing continuously and that more opportunities are awaiting now than ever before. "One branch leads to another," the young lady from Berks County said confidently. "Agricultural fields offer some of the most important occupations anyone can attain these days, and it's really worthwhile," she continued.

Wendy Shaw

Wendy is following in his footsteps and says it's because of him that she has so much interest in dairy cattle.

The Shaws are originally from the Hagerstown area of Maryland, where the family had Jerseys. Presently, the family is involved with a 50-cow milking herd of Holsteins.

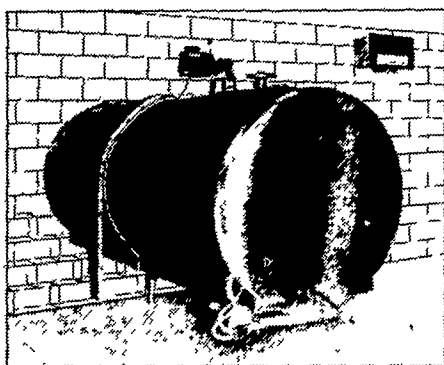

"Fitting an animal isn't just going to the fair and starting there," Wendy assured. "You start at least six weeks beforehand and continue working with the animal all through the fair circuit." Asked if she walked her cows and heifers a good bit, the active 4-H'er answered "yes," adding that showing them at so many shows as she does is in itself an exercise for her and the animal. "It really helps," she affirmed.

The secretary of her local 4-H club, and vice-president of her FFA chapter, Wendy is also an accomplished public speaker. Surprisingly, she considers her feats along that line to be the most exciting thing she has done all year. "I was first place speaker during the Eastern Regionals," said this girl, who admits she wouldn't be happy anywhere but on a farm. "I gained more out of that than anything else I've ever done," she remarked. She was sixth in state competition.

What was the topic of Wendy's speech? As you might have guessed, it was about "Your Future in Agriculture."

The accomplished competitor of the show circuit offers these tips to those who might want to sharpen their skills: "Strive for perfection, make the animal look as best as you can. In order for her to win the class typewise, you must make her look her best, that's the most important part of showmanship." Wendy did just that with her W-S Linden-Loch RA Sutee, a 2-year old with which she took top honors in Harrisburg. Earlier this year, she and this same cow won at the Oley Fair, Allentown Fair, and District 4-H Dairy Show. She stood second at the Kutztown Fair. All told, she's been a consistent winner with her animals for the past several years.

The young lady gives much of the credit for her abilities to her mother and father, who she says have been good coaches and have never given up on her. Although her mother is a transplanted city girl, her father was active in both 4-H and FFA during his youth.

Caution flag up on aflatoxins in corn

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - Crop specialists at the University of Maryland's Extension Service and Pennsylvania's Department of Agriculture have both issued warnings concerning aflatoxin poisoning. This year's corn crop is reportedly vulnerable to the mold-produced poison, and farmers are being alerted.

The problem is not at all common to Pennsylvania, and none has yet been found in Maryland. However, due to feeds being shipped from state to state, both Maryland and Pennsylvania are taking precautionary measures.

Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Kent D. Shelhamer is urging Commonwealth farmers to exercise caution in purchasing out-of-state field corn which may be contaminated by aflatoxin (Aspergillus flavus toxin), a potentially toxic or carcinogenic substance.

Shelhamer said "No Pennsylvania farmer should sign a contract for out-of-state field corn unless an aflatoxin test is administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture or certification as to the absence of aflatoxin is obtained from the supplier."

Shelhamer cited indications of a heavy incidence of aflatoxin in field corn harvested "south of the Mason-Dixon Line" as the major reason for precautions.

He said aflatoxin can develop if corn kernels are subjected to "such stress-causing situations as drought, mechanical damage and insect infestation." Shelhamer noted the United States Department of Agriculture's Research Service has tended to substantiate widespread reports of aflatoxin in field corn harvested in a number of Southeastern states. The Southeast produces about six per cent of field corn in the U.S. according to USDA.

Dairy animals are particularly susceptible to aflatoxin poisoning, which is why the federal government has established a tolerance level of just 20 parts per billion. The Food and Drug Administration has directed that corn be harvested according to these standards. Federal guidelines are also in force for feeds moved across state lines.

Dairy farmers are faced with "zero tolerance" levels in milk, but should have no problems if FDA recommendations are followed. They should be safe if fed corn does not contain more than 20 parts per billion of aflatoxin contamination. The same criterion applies in starter rations for young stock - including poultry. Should any metabolite pass into the milk, it is much less dangerous to human health than the original aflatoxin consumed by the cow.

In contrast to the dairy situation, research has shown that meat animals - including poultry - can consume feed with aflatoxin levels up to 100 parts per billion without ill effect. At this level, no residues will show up in edible animal tissues - or in eggs - notes Dr. Robert C. Hammond, Extension veterinarian and veterinary science department chairman at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Feed containing more than 200 parts per billion of aflatoxin contamination may be toxic to animals - particularly young stock - and should be fed with caution if at all.

In sufficient quantities, aflatoxins will cause animals to go off feed and lose weight. Noticeable production drops - down to absolute zero - will occur in lactating dairy cows and in laying hens. The mold-based toxins lower an animal's resistance to disease by decreasing the ability to produce antibodies. In extreme cases, they can cause an animal's death - either directly or indirectly.

Aflatoxin levels as high as 400 parts per billion have been found in corn harvested this fall in the Georgia-South Carolina area.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration is conducting high-priority sampling of corn milling facilities in the Southeast to determine if products intended for human consumption may contain excessive aflatoxin contamination from the 1977 corn crop.

Federal grain inspectors, working under the U.S. Department of Agriculture, are on the alert these days for aflatoxin contamination. And they are alerting foreign buyers - through the U.S. State Department - on the level of such contamination. The buyers can then accept or reject contaminated shipments - based on their own country's import regulations.

Unfortunately, the image didn't improve as the President continued with his brief talk on Sept. 30.

It's understood that no man in the world is busier than the President of the United States. He has an awesomely complicated and difficult job to perform. His time is undoubtedly limited. Even though we understand that, it's still a disappointment to see a President leave as quickly as he came in. Carter gave no time for brief visits with his guests, yet it's something all of us expected since the President is often pictured as having time for just about anyone. Ford, on the other hand, stayed around for five or ten minutes to shake hands and talk, despite cues from aides that he should be on his way to the next meeting. Another privilege Ford offered was a special tour of the White House. Carter did not.

Granted, Ford had a little more at stake 18 months ago than Carter did last week. Were Carter up for election, he might have found time for chatting.

The Democratic President struck out totally when he turned one of his State Department people loose on the group of farm editors to pass out what amounted to Administration propaganda on the Panama Canal issue. Few, if any, were willing to buy it, and a number of them were disgusted with the tactic. Farm editors, for the most part, consider the Panama Canal as United States property.

Well, it was a good visit anyway. We got to see the President, which is a feather in the cap of this newspaper and its editor. We sat in the Cabinet Room and milled around portions of the Old Executive Office Building for several other briefings. But we went home with little news and that kind of makes you wonder why the meeting was called in the first place.

Sadly, one bolder than average farm editor may have struck a hard note of truth when he addressed himself to the final speaker of the day - USDA Secretary Robert Bergland. Following five hours of presentations by members of the Carter Administration, the journalist announced: "Mr. Secretary, I hope you have a good story for us, because there's a bunch of us here who don't have a story yet!"

of our corn crop. We won't make any cotton at home. Our soybean crop is very badly damaged. Our peanut crop is probably going to be off 25 or 30 per cent - because of the weather, not because I became President. But I know from experience that farmers tend to blame the President when they have a short crop or when the prices are low.

"I think this new farm bill, when it is analyzed by farm groups, and also the set-aside program for wheat and some feed grains, next year will be, I think, an indication of my understanding of the farm needs. And I think the increase in support price and target prices for the '77 crops will also help.

"But I would guess the political popularity of the President will always go up and down depending on the general attitude of farmers," Carter said.

In concluding his remarks, the President said:

"I would like to stay with you longer, but I have got to go. I want to say this in closing: I don't claim to know all the answers about agriculture. It is my life, and I always feel at home when I am meeting with or talking to farm groups like yourselves.

"I have learned, as Bob Bergland is learning very well, that we have a highly diverse agricultural economy in this country. It is our most important industry by far, and when I assess in my own mind, sometimes in the quietness of my office late at night looking at the globe, the advantages that our country has over perhaps competing nations, our agriculture production is one of the greatest constant unshakeable advantages, and I am very thankful for what the American farm family and ranch family have done to give us this advantage. It is one that contributes not to competition leading to bloodshed, but it is a contribution to competition leading to peace.

"I am just very grateful you would come here and take a day of your time getting to know some of my own fellow workers in the White House, and I hope that the day is productive for you.

"I hope you will extend my personal best wishes to all of your readers and all of your friends when you go back home, because they have got a friend and a farmer in the White House.

Thank you again very Young ones honored at Lebanon Holstein dinner

By DIETER KRIEG

MOUNT ZION - Gathering here and filling every seat in the Fellowship Hall of Zoar's Lutheran Church, Lebanon County Holstein breeders paid tribute to some of the organizations' younger members. The occasion was the annual banquet of the Lebanon County Holstein Club, held Tuesday evening.

Gestures of appreciation weren't limited to young adults, however. Early in the program, Ken Mase introduced a gentleman who needs no introduction among Pennsylvania Holstein breeders. Rising from his chair amidst applause was Hubert Miller of Myerstown, 81, whose Lume Rock Holsteins have been making a name for themselves and their owner for more than half a century. Miller is a lifetime member of the County Holstein Club and serves on the organization's board of directors and executive committee.

Taking home plaques and certificates for meritorious production records by their Holstein animals were more than a dozen junior members. Among them was Lebanon County Dairy Princess, Joyce Moyer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moyer, Lebanon. The petite and pretty brunette was called to the front four times to receive recognition for her animals' production records.

Joyce's aged cow led the list for butterfat production with a tally of 699 pounds. Following, in order, were Jane Bomgardner, Kirby Horst, and Rick Krall. In milk production for aged cows, Rick Krall's bovine beat the competition with a record of 19,673 pounds. Placing after him were Kirby Horst, Joyce Moyer and Jane Bomgardner.

David Bomgardner scored two victories with his 4-year old, which finished her most recent lactation with 25,748 pounds of milk and 774 pounds of butterfat. Behind him in milk were Jane Bomgardner, Joyce Moyer, and Barbara Sattazahn. For fat production, the list was rounded out by the same three people, the only difference being that Barbara Sattazahn edged Joyce Moyer for third place.

Vincent Arnold and Alan Hostetter captured first places in milk and butterfat production, respectively, for 3-year old Holsteins. Arnold's animal led with 18,909 pounds, to beat entries by Ray Moyer and Pat Arnold. Hostetter's 3-year old churned out 726 pounds of butterfat to go ahead of Holsteins owned by Ray Moyer, Vincent Arnold and Kirby Horst, who placed behind him in that order.

topped the field with a record of 19,856 pounds. Coming in close behind, at 19,674 pounds, was a cow owned by Pat Arnold. Gary Reist and Dave Bomgardner were third and fourth, respectively. Gary Reist's first calf heifer checked in with 719 pounds of butterfat to take the crown in that division. Alan Hostetter, David Bomgardner and Pat Arnold trailed in that order.

Another group of youngsters who were honored was the 4-H Dairy Cattle Judging Team from Lebanon County, which came away with a second place during state-wide competition at the Pennsylvania All-American in Harrisburg last week. Members of the team were Dave and Jane Bomgardner, Kirby Horst, and Alan Hostetter.

Other portions of the program, which was attended by an estimated 250 people, included remarks from Hershey Bare, state director for the club; Robert Morris, representing the Pennsylvania Holstein Association; Robert Lentz, sales representative of the National Association; and Clarence Stauffer, program director for HFPA.

Comments by the four men centered around membership dues and registration fees, both of which have been approved for changes which go into effect in the near future. Calves must also be registered by the age of six months, rather than the previous 8-month limit, if lower registration fees are to hold. Members are urged to take note of these changes and to pass the word along to anyone who may not yet be aware of the new rulings. It was also noted that the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's farm near Middletown is receiving improved and enlarged export facilities and that the new building was designed to be multi-purpose.

Holstein breeders throughout the area are encouraged to consider raising both heifers and bulls for possible sale to foreign countries, several speakers noted.

Concluding the program was a slide presentation on the Club's tour to Canada last Spring. Among the farms the group visited were: Agro Acres, Browndale Farm, Ebyholme Farms, Ebydale Farms, United Breeders, Spring Farms, Rowntree Farms, Via-Pax, Roman-dale Farms, Oak Ridges Farm, Hanover Hill Farm, and Roybrook Farm.

Entertainment for the evening was also provided by the Maulfair Sisters - Elaine, Diane, and Brenda - of Jonestown.

In tests managed by farmers on Pennsylvania farms, Trojan hybrids beat the best that competition could offer.

These were the toughest, fairest tests we know of. The Trojan hybrids were planted side-by-side with Pioneer and Funk's hybrids. All hybrids received the same treatment. No special handling of any kind.

Go with the winners. Challenge your land, challenge the weather, challenge your yield goals. Plant Trojan hybrids.

See your Pfizer Genetics dealer. He'll recommend the Trojan hybrids that are best for you and your farm.

Bair, who has been with the Lancaster County Extension Service since 1971 as a dairy specialist, received the honor for an article on calf hutches which was published in Lancaster Farming in June of 1976. A graduate of Penn State with bachelor and master degrees in dairy science, Bair is married to Lancaster Farming's feature writer, Sally Brown Bair. They have two children.

At a subsequent meeting here on Oct. 6 it was made public that Shearer, Guy Temple, and Jared Tyson - all of them with the Pennsylvania Extension Service - received Distinguished Service Awards.

According to E.V. Chadwick, Luzerne County Extension director and state awards committee chairman, Shearer is being cited for his "outstanding educational contributions to Pennsylvania's agriculture."

The Franklin County Extension agent was honored for his work with youth, farm-city relations, and horticultural programs.

Shearer was instrumental in the establishment of the Franklin County Fair in 1965 which has grown into a large agricultural event. He continues to work closely with fair officials in expanding educational projects and activities.

During his tenure, Franklin County 4-H Club enrollment has increased from 365 in 1960 to 1,320 in 1975. The award recipient, a member of the Penn State staff for 22 years, was assigned to Franklin County in 1960. Prior to that he served five years as assistant and associate Columbia County agent.

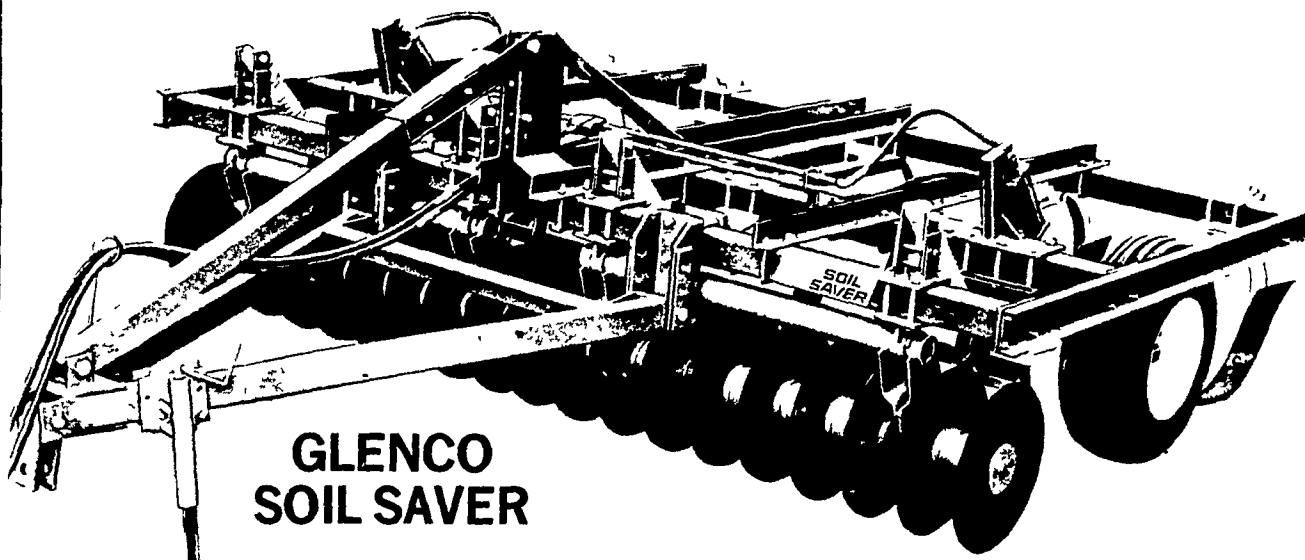

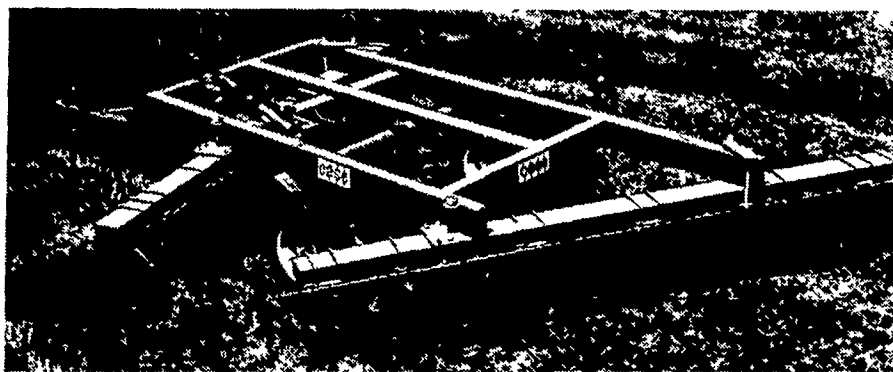

Temple conducts resource development programs in Centre, Clinton, Mifflin, Juniata, Snyder, Union, Lycoming, Northumberland, Montour, and Columbia counties. He is stationed in foresee the moderate continuation of the downward trend in farm equipment sales for most major product lines."

He said that although there are areas of strength such as dairying, livestock and cotton to partially offset the pressure on wheat and grain farming, "we anticipate increased competition in our industry for farm equipment sales in the coming year."

John E. Mitchell, executive vice president Americas, Massey-Ferguson, Inc., said total unit sales of farm machinery in North America are expected to decline five to 10 per cent in 1978. But he said in dollars this decrease will be set by the continuing trends towards larger, more efficient machinery to minimize farmers production costs and handle larger acreages.

J. H. Grommersch, assistant general manager of Ford Tractor Operations, also said the need to maintain income margins through increased efficiency will provide a continuing incentive for farmers in the market place. But, he said, on balance "we forecast that 1978 farm tractor sales will be four per cent below 1977."

Roy W. Uelner, executive vice president of Allis-Chalmers Corporation, said that the agricultural equipment market for the remainder of 1977 and through 1978 is likely to be below the long-term trends since excessive grain stocks have resulted in reduced commodity prices and acreage set asides for 1978 crops.

200 tons of soybean meal daily. To supply this rate of production, it involves as many as 30 trucks coming in per day and 20 railroad cars per week.

Operating 90 hours per week, nothing about his mill creaks, or moans, or groans. It's solid concrete and steel construction called for over 5000 yards of concrete and 114 tons of steel. Unlike most mills, everything in this one is covered. The familiar maze of ducts and delivery pipes atop most other mills isn't visible here. Latest governmental regulations require it. Also unique in this operation are four separate dust collection systems, so employees aren't subjected the normal milling atmosphere. Auxiliary buildings include four silos, capable of storing 60,000 bushels of corn and 550 tons of soybean meal, a steel warehouse, a retail receiving shed, a truck wash. The facility includes 41 bins, some of them 60 feet deep and wholly contained in the superstructure.

Most fascinating and unique of all, however, is the control panel which takes up an entire wall. One man manages this system of blinking lights and multi-colored patterns. Directly in front of him is a TV screen, which gives him a visual print-out of everything he programs into the via a typewriter keyboard. This is the heart of the operation, from which point everything is controlled and monitored. Every batch of feed is prepared to required specifications. Every ingredient is handled automatically a network of conveyors, elevators, chutes, and remotely controlled gates and valves.

Built at a cost of approximately $3.5 million,

Pennfield Corporation's new mill is the result of five years of planning and study. According to Pennfield figures, the mill's 1000 tons of feed per day can be interpreted into one pound of broiler meat for 185,000 people, or a 2-egg breakfast for 3 million people, daily. It's designated with safety, efficiency, and future expansion in mind. A

Floyd Schell, console operator at Pennfield's computerized feed mill, observes the figures flashing on the screen. The keyboard in front of him is all he needs to program the huge feed milling operation. Virtually every phases of the operation is controlled and monitored from this room. Schematic diagrams and a series of lights help the operator determine just what's going on.

unique safety feature — reportedly one of the first in the nation for a feed mill — are the explosion panels which will blow out at 30 pounds of pressure. Future expansion plans include more silos, a rail receiving area for up to 18 cars, additional receiving and grinding elevators, another 4-ton mixer, another pellet mill and additional load-out bins and scales. All told, that would eventually double the giant mill's capacity.

In addition to this high-volume mill, Pennfield also operates other mills in Rohrerstown, York, and Red Lion. A progressive agribusiness firm, Pennfield Corporation was formed in 1971 by the consolidation of two century-old companies — Miller and Bushong, Inc. of Rohrerstown, and the D.E. Horn Company, Inc. of York. The corporation is active in all phases of feed, egg and poultry production, processing and marketing. Nearly 100 types of poultry and livestock feeds are manufactured and sold by the firm.

Aside from its milling operations, Pennfield Corporation includes Pennfield Farms, Grimes Poultry Processing, Beachley-Hardy Seed Company, J. Brame Witmer fuel oil distributors, and an Allied Products Division.

Employing more than 600 people among its six divisions, Pennfield is a privately-held corporation headed by a board of directors. Ernest O. Horn, Sr., is chairman of the board, and Robert Graybill is president.

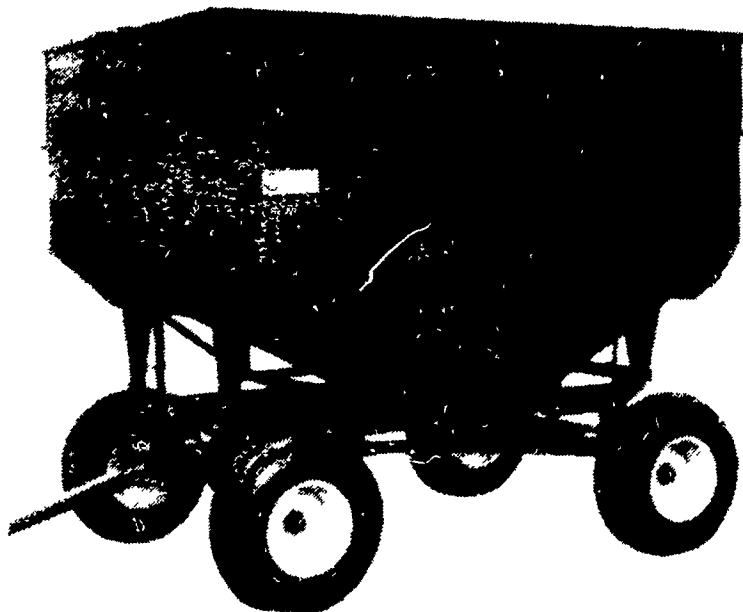

BILLIONS OF EARTHWORMS WOULD DO YOUR CHISELING, (loosen your soil and subsoil to hold water and work easier) if they are not doped with chemicals. No repairs, no fuel, no charge except a non-toxic diet. They would give you much rich manure fertilizer of the best kind, not raw, unbalanced and toxic. They would decompose your organic matter for you quickly into nitrogen, resulting soil would be healthy to capture even more nitrogen out of the air which you otherwise would miss, which is the reason why the farmers who use our products to promote earthworms for several years are getting huge crops of higher nutritional value (cows and labs prove it) with no bought fertilizer. Big corn, high population, no fertilizer since using Agriserum 6 years ago, which cost only about $1.50 per acre. It promotes earthworms and soil bacteria.

NATURMIN M42G minerals, a mine deposit, also multiply earthworms plus supply the missing elements in the soil for producing large, healthy, blight and insect resistant, nutritious crop with less fertilizer. It works faster than Agriserum. It's great on fruit and vegetables for health, fruit size, flavor and earlier ripening. We expect to unload a railroad car the week of Oct. 10th at a quantity discount to encourage fall field application for best results next year. They don't deteriorate over winter. If you think our products are too cheap or insignificant, or if you don't have free fertilizer factories in your fields yet, then we have extra good and proven organic fertilizer of various blends for you. Will match chemicals dollar for dollar especially second year and in drought. Plan ahead. If you don't assist nature, she'll give up and you pay the bill in fertilizer and insecticides. Naturmin minerals are also marvelous for feeding — supplying the missing elements. It stops the craving of wood chewing, tail biting, vent picking, less vets, more milk, meat and eggs on less feed. More information next week or in free literature and testimonials. Watch this ad. Trying to help farmers survive, we are learning of more and better products and methods to save them money for the coming serious crisis. You can't fool nature by going back we'll go forward.

UNVERFERTH McCURDY

All Unverferth McCurdy grain boxes have the steepest slope available for faster unloading. They also have several new improvements. And now two large capacity models are available.

We've reduced the number of interior welded seams. This reduces the possibility of your load getting hung up on a seam or ledge. Loads will empty quickly and completely without the need to risk injury by getting inside with a broom. Reducing the number of welded seams gives even more strength and durability to U.M.'s non-flexing box design.

Unverferth McCurdy boxes are primed for rust prevention before the final finish is applied. And that final finish is still available only from U.M. in your choice of red, orange, blue or green to match your equipment.

To match the requirements of your operation, Unverferth McCurdy offers you three different size models. Now you can choose a U.M. box in either 230, 275 or 435 cubic foot capacity. These are actual cubic measurements without optional sideboards.

Livestock judges share limelight at beef show

By JOANNE SPAHR
MANHEIM - A pair of Simmental-Hereford cross-breds owned by the top two 4-H livestock judges in the country, and purchased at the same club calf sale, took the 4-H and FFA championship titles at the Manheim Community Fair on Wednesday.

Kevin Rohrer, Manheim R7, the number one 4-H livestock judge in the country, showed the grand champion FFA steer which later went on to become the grand champion of show over the 4-H champion shown by Kenneth Brubaker, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brubaker, 2418 with Brubaker on the Pennsylvania 4-H livestock judging team for a year. Although Rohrer was not eligible for 4-H this year, he could still show under FFA.

The two showmen had one other thing in common on Wednesday evening - they were both in their last year of youth division showing.

For Rohrer, who is 20 years old, the Friday evening steer sale actually heralded the end of his career, since he sold his 1157 pound heavyweight FFA project there and has no intention of showing again.

"This is the best I've ever done," the champion stated, illuminating the proper

The reserve champion of the FFA show went to Jay Nissley, Manheim R5, with his first place medium heavyweight steer. And, reserve 4-H champion honors went to Barry Geib, Manheim R4, with his first place steer of the heavyweight division.

Dr. Robert Herr, Narvon R2, judged this show with the following results:

FFA
Lightweight - 1. Dale Hermey, Elizabethtown R1; 2. Barry Heisey, Elizabethtown R4; 3. Rick Groff, Manheim R6; 4. Steve Hershey, Manheim R6.

Mediumweight - 1. Jay Nissley, Manheim R5 (reserve champion FFA steer); 2. Barry Geib, Manheim R4; 3. Scott Spayd, Lititz R4; 4. Earl Geib, Manheim R4.

Heavyweight - 1. Kevin Rohrer, Manheim R7 (FFA champion steer and grand champion steer); 2. Bill Landis, Lancaster; 3. Janice Kaylor, Elizabethtown R3; 4. Tom Wenger, Manheim R4; 5. George Tarker, Lancaster R6.

4-H
Lightweight - 1. Ed Nissley, Manheim R5; 2. Judy Gish, Elizabethtown; 3. Steve Hershey; 4. Wayne Gish, Elizabethtown; 5. Tim Long, Manheim R4.

Mediumweight - 1. Teresa Brandt, Manheim R2; 2. Dora Jo Geib, Manheim R6; 3. Deann Gish, Elizabethtown; 4. Andy Greiner, Manheim RD; 5. Earl Geib, Manheim R4.

Light Heavyweight - 1. Ken Brubaker, 2418 Old

Harrisburg Pike (4-H champion steer and reserve grand champion steer); 2. Holly Keller, Lititz R6; 3. Becky LeFever, Manheim R4; 4. Linda Shenk, Manheim R4; 5. Doug Hoover, Elizabethtown R3.

Heavyweight - 1. Barry Geib, (reserve champion 4-H steer); 2. Bernie Gish, Elizabethtown; 3. Sara Brubaker, 2418 Old Old Harrisburg Pike, Lancaster. Brubaker was named the second ranked 4-H livestock judge in the country in Louisville, Ky., last year.

The showmen, who were accustomed to sharing the limelight, shared it again on Wednesday with Rohrer readily admitting that Brubaker picked out his Simmental-Hereford for him at the Octoraro Farm club calf sale held last November. Both animals, as well as the reserve champion 4-H animal, came from that sale, held by the Wylie Brothers of Nottingham R2, with the top two animals coming out of the same championship pen.

"Ken knew the kind of animal I was looking for," says the Manheim FFA member, who had worked finish to a long 4-H and FFA career. "I've done well in judging, but this is the best I've done with a steer," he added.

Brubaker is also in his last year of 4-H, although he will be participating in other shows this year, including the Southeast District 4-H baby beef show. His aim, he says, is the champion of Farm Show.

On Wednesday, Brubaker's animal was initially named first place steer of the 4-H light heavyweight division before taking that show title.

Brubaker, nationally rated in beef showmanship, took the first place berth in senior showmanship, as well. Junior showmanship honors went to Teresa Brandt.

Tyson was cited for his educational youth work in Adams County, particularly his leadership in conducting a three-day county 4-H roundup and supervision of numerous other youth activities.

The 4-H roundup is designed to improve youth's understanding of biological and physical sciences, economics, arts, crafts, and safety while acquainting the public with the Adams County 4-H program.

Tyson works closely with a committee of 25 teen and adult leaders in planning and conducting the roundup. Another 150 leaders assist in scoring the project displays. Last year, 950 4-H members exhibited 1,140 projects at the roundup.

The award recipient also shares responsibility for adult Extension programs, working with beef cattle interests and assisting other staff members with horticultural activities.

LOWE

Energy Efficient Homesteads®

Our Low-E homes are designed from the ground up to be the most energy-efficient you can buy. Purely and simply, what we have done is combine all the existing energy-saving techniques with some innovative building methods. The result is a home that can cut heating and cooling costs up to 65%. The Arkansas Power and Light Company reports that homes built to Low-E specifications in their area are averaging a 65% savings when compared to homes built to FHA minimum property standards. The Arkansas results are actual metered results over a 2-year period — no gimmicks, no guesses — but actual metered results! Imagine what that means to you in dollars-and-cents terms. A Low-E Homestead® represents energy savings wrapped up in one beautiful structure.

Not a pre-fab. Not a shell house. Each energy-efficient Homestead® is a complete materials package necessary to build the home of the future — today — on your lot from the foundation plate up. Construction labor costs not included.

You provide the construction labor, lot and foundation; we provide the materials to complete — from the foundation plate up — the interior and exterior of these homes according to plans and specifications. The materials furnished will meet or exceed the national minimum property standards of FHA. Any changes required to meet local or state codes may alter the price accordingly. Lowe's quotes you one price for all the materials, so you know before you start your total cost!

Designed from the ground up to meet the demands of a changing world. Here's how we did it!

We obviously can't go into complete detail here — we've got an 8-page brochure to do that. But, briefly, we began by doubling the standard amount of insulation used — to 12" in the ceiling and 6" in walls and floors. We used 2 x 6 studs with post and beam construction, 24" on center in the walls to accommodate 6" insulation and specially designed trusses for 12" insulation in the attic. An electrical raceway allows application of insulation flush to the walls, while the electrical cable in the attic is strung above the insulation. We also cut window area down to 8-10% of the floor space, used caulked double-paned windows, and insulated metal doors with magnetic weatherstripping. We caulked between the sole plate and the flooring, with insulation between the sill plate and foundation wall. A vapor barrier is used next to the sub-flooring and in the walls and ceiling. The design also allows enough roof overhang to shade windows and a light-colored roof to reduce heat in summer, with natural air flow throughout the attic. Finally, polyethylene was applied to the ground in the crawl space to greatly reduce moisture accumulation.

Can cost no more to build than a minimum property standard home having similar features.

Does that sound too good to be true? Well, believe it! We've utilized some innovative building techniques to really trim labor costs. And our homes require fewer board feet of lumber, which reduces construction costs even more. Even better than that — studies have shown that a Low-E Homestead® is as structurally sound as a conventionally built one.

Interested? We've got a beautiful brochure that tells the complete energy efficient Low-E story. It's yours for the asking — just drop by our store.

LIFE on the farm

By Dieter Krieg, Editor

The way those fellows were dressed, you'd think they were on their way to a business executive's meeting. Shoes were polished like mirrors, not a hair was out of place, and there wasn't a speck of dirt underneath their fingernails or ingrained into the palms of their soft little hands. They looked like models more than anything else.

Sizing them up as I walked towards their new automobile, I figured these guys to be a real pair of softies who thought they were big shots. Farmers don't usually have much time for these sort of characters. Each young man carried a clipboard with plenty of paper. Maybe they were government agents instead of models. I could tell they weren't salesmen because anyone with something to sell doesn't play the role of the high and mighty.

Dad wasn't saying much, but I could tell he wouldn't have missed their visit at all. He was sizing these guys up about the same way I was and undoubtedly thinking the same thing. Aside from these characters being way overdressed for anything less than a social affair at some fancy club, these two young bucks acted as though they were Mr. Authority and Mr. Executive. They thought they knew most everything and demanded to know whatever they didn't know. They had forms to fill out and really took that job to heart. In the process they made fools out of themselves and left an impression which sank to the depths of human possibilities.

It wasn't until after they had gone that Dad really voiced his objection to their visit. Shaking his head and laughing half in anger and half in enjoyment out of the ridiculousness of it all, he told of some of the questions the two men had asked. Like how many bathrooms we had. They wanted to know, in detail, about any remodeling or building we had done and anything else that had changed on the farm during the last several years.

Most farmers thinks that's nobody's business but their own, especially when the fellows asking all the questions are the county tax assessors.

Angus-Chianina wins beef show at Bloomsburg

BLOOMSBURG - The 4-H Steer Show was held at the Bloomsburg Fair on September 27 with 34 4-H members from five counties entered.

Champion of the show was a 1000 pound Angus-Chianina steer shown by Don Byerly of Northumberland county.

This trim black steer came from the medium weight class and edged out the first place light heavyweight for the top spot in the show.

The reserve champion was a 1095 pound Charolais steer shown by Nick Heintzelman of Snyder county. Other first place winners were: Kevin Johnson, Columbia County, heavyweight class; and Craig Johnson, Columbia County, lightweight class.

The showmanship contest was won by Heintzelman in the senior division and Ann Haladay, of Columbia County in the junior division.

BEEF SALE

The 4-H beef sale in the arena at the Bloomsburg Fair on September 29 brought prices ranging from 70 cents to $1.75 per pound for a total of 35,760 pounds of live beef.

The grand champion steer was purchased by Clark's Agcenter, Turbotville. Clark's bid of $1.75 per pound purchased the 1000-pound champion steer owned by Don Byerly of Danville R2. This was a record price for the 4-H beef sale at Bloomsburg, surpassing last year's price of $1.20 per pound.

The champion was a Lemousin-Angus crossbred that came to the Byerly farm as a 400-pound calf from a ranch in Montana.

The reserve champion, a 1095 pound steer, owned by Nick Heintzelman of Snyder County sold to N.S. Troutman and Sons of Freeburg at a bid of 77 cents per pound. The reserve champion steer was purchased as a calf at the Susquehanna Feeder Sale at Danville last October.

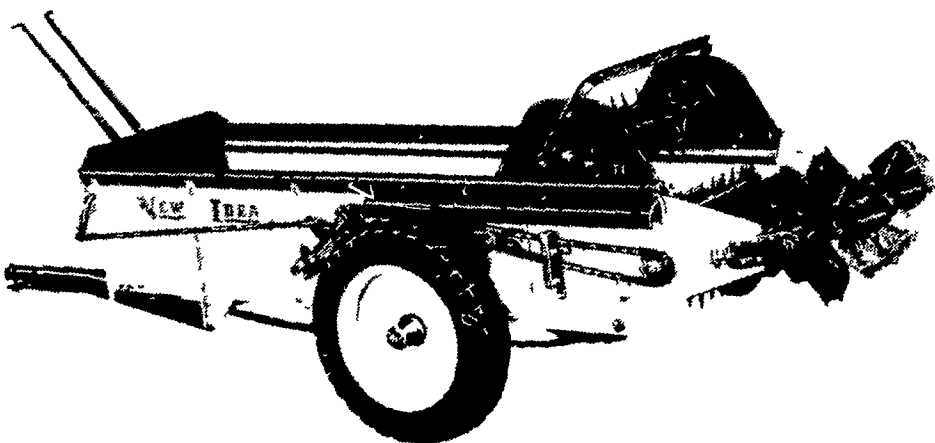

The first place lightweight steer owned by Craig Johnson of Bloomsburg went to Gessner's Meats of Lewisburg. The Country Store, Pennsdale, got the first place heavyweight steer owned by Kevin Johnson, also of Bloomsburg.

The 34 steers sold were purchased last Fall as calves and cared for by the 4-H 'ers for the past 11 months.

The contending bidder for the grand champion was Danville Cattle Company which also purchased other steers in the sale. Among the other buyers who purchased steers were, Keister's Middleburg Market; Rothermel Meats, Danville; Roger Sanders, Bloomsburg; Mifflinburg Farmers Exchange; Catawissa Bottling Company; A.J. Balshai, Catawissa; Byerly Brothers' Meats, Milton; Herman's Cannery, Northumberland; Country Cupboard, Lewisburg; Farnsworth Camping Center, Elysburg, and Gensemer's Meats, Bloomsburg.

The auctioneer was Larry Long and chairman of the sale was Leonard Yearick, Northumberland county agent

FLEXIBLE BEARING ARMS

Rugged steel C-shaped bearing arms provide the strength to assure good penetration yet allow flexibility for the disc gangs to ride over obstructions. This helps prevent damage to the gang assembly and frame members.

GANG MOUNTED SCRAPERS

The rugged paddle-type scrapers are mounted to the bearing hangers so they move with the disc gang. This keeps the scraper next to the blade at all times.

HEAVY GAUGE BLADES

High carbon 24" x 1/4" disc blades are standard equipment. These thick heavy blades will provide the strength required when striking obstacles in the field. Extra heavy-duty spools are also used on all rock-flex models.

Three month visit to Norway turns into year's stay for FFA'er

Jay Ault, a member of the Cedar Crest Chapter of the Future Farmers of America, looks over a map of Norway and Sweden, his homes for the past year.

LEBANON - Jay Ault, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Ault, 2101 South Fifth Avenue, Lebanon, graduated from high school in June of last year and three days later headed for Norway for what he thought would be a three month visit.

Just this Summer he returned, one year after he last said goodbye in person to his parents, with a whole new outlook on the Scandinavian countries and the United States, as well.

Jay, now age 19, took part in the Future Farmers of America Work Experience Abroad program, in which FFA members who meet certain requirements are given the opportunity to live and work in other countries for either three, six, or 12 months. While they are in their host countries, they receive their room and board in return for helping the individual with whom they are living.

Originally, Jay chose to stay in Europe for three months, but finding out that he was needed by his hosts and that he really enjoyed his experience, he chose to extend his visit for first two and a half months, then three and a half more, and finally, three more. In the end, he stayed the maximum time allowed in the program - a year - jostling between Norway and Sweden.

Jay's first home was in Mandal, Norway, a seacoast resort town on the southern tip of that Scandinavian country.

"It had the largest beach in all of Norway," says Jay. "They kept telling me about the longest beach in the country, and when I saw it for the first time I nearly fell over - it was about 300 yards long, and the rest was rocks!"

His host in that country was a beekeeper, and while Jay did not choose to go to Europe to learn beekeeping, he grew to become really interested in the business.

"I had to learn not to be apprehensive about the bees," he said, "that's when I learned the most."

was not included on the application form for the program. So, he signed up for living with a host involved in "agri-business" and he came up with the beekeeper.

And, he doesn't regret it one bit. "I'd like to do beekeeping as a hobby, at least," he says.

According to Jay, the agriculture in Norway is quite a bit different from that in his Lebanon County home. First of all, there is quite a bit less farmland, and because of this, the natives don't waste a single acre.

"They farm angles we wouldn't even think of farming," informs Jay. "And, because farmland is so precious, the government protects it with laws. If a farm is sold, it must be used for agriculture for five years." According to Jay, the same holds true for an inheritance. The oldest son usually inherits the estate and he must farm the land for five years before doing anything else with it.

After five years, however, the new owner can do whatever he chooses, so the country is slowly being built up.

According to Jay, Norway is very mountainous, and as a result of this, the roads wind and curve quite a bit, and are also narrower than those in the United States.

"Their interstate highways are only two lanes - they're like our secondary roads," notes Jay, commenting further that many are single lane, dirt, or sand.

Although Jay didn't get to northern Norway, he did learn that the majority of the farmers in that area raise sheep. And, he says with a chuckle, a dairy herd in southern Norway can consist of as many as four cows.

"Where we lived, we'd see the neighbor go on his tractor every day, taking his four cows out to pasture," he laughs. The Norwegians' and the Swedes' favorite makes of tractors are Ford and Volvo.

The main crop raised in that Scandinavian country is grains, strawberries, and grasses also raised.

Although the particular estate on which Jay lived had been a farm originally, at the present time the owners use their buildings for honey extraction and other processes that go along with beekeeping.

With a grin, Jay recalls the problem in semantics that he first had when he arrived on the farm.

"They call their barn their 'outhouse' and this really caused confusion, because they don't have a bathroom in the house, but they do have one outside, so I was always talking about one thing while they were talking about another," Jay laughs, rolling his eyes for effect.

Fortunately for Jay, who did not speak Norwegian, this comic relief was the worst problem he had with language because his hosts spoke fluent English.

After five and a half months in Norway, Jay moved onto Gotene, (pronounced Yo-ta-na), Sweden, where he was able to work at forestry, his main love from the time he first entered vocational agriculture. His host family, there, was in the swine business as well as lumbering.

In Sweden, which Jay visited from mid-November through the beginning of March, the FFA exchange student learned three things - first of all, Sweden is cold in the Winter; secondly, lumbering is hard work; and thirdly, chain saws are not toys. The first day out, Jay cut his leg with the chain saw and had to have eight stitches.

"I learned to be more careful," he says wryly.

According to Jay, Norway and Sweden are basically the same, except for the cuisine

Farm equipment

Farm Equipment Division, said it would be "at best naive and at worst irresponsible to expect any type of overall banner year for farm equipment in 1978 in light of recent on-the-farm problems."

But, while he said the overall industry might be off five to seven per cent in retail sales dollars, Engle, like others, pointed out that agriculture is made up of many different segments and not all are the same problems as grain farming.

"Dairying isn't all that bad. Hogs and cattle have improved somewhat, and beans aren't too bad either. So, while the basic wheat and corn farmers are and will be hurting - other segments don't look all that bad for the months ahead," Engle said.

In that segmented picture, White's Kidder noted that the market for large two-wheel drive tractors is the strongest because they are used in agricultural operations that aren't having the same problems as grain farming which utilizes more of the four-wheel drive tractors.

William J. Jensen, senior vice president of Butler Manufacturing Company's agricultural equipment group, said "strength for the agricultural equipment market will shift from the crop to the livestock sector during 1978" and said demand for livestock equipment should further strengthen.

Robert P. White, president of Van Dale, Inc. which manufactures farmstead equipment, said his firm anticipates at least a 10 per cent increase in sales in 1978.

Joe Zadra, president of the Gehl Company of West Bend, Wisconsin, said "equipment sales to livestock farmers could increase."

M. L. Lorenzen, whose Hawkeye Steel Products firm manufactures equipment for livestock and hog operations, said he anticipates total livestock equipment sales in 1978 will exceed 1977.

Erik A. Gregersen, division manager of FMC's agricultural machinery division, said that while the general agricultural economy is projected to be down in 1978 several of the submarkets his firm serves should show improvement such as the citrus, nut, and tomato industries.

Rick McElheny of Farmhand, Inc. said he expects overall retail sales of farm equipment to be down five to 10 per cent.

Lyle E. Yost, chairman of Hesston Corporation, said his firm "views 1978 as possibly the final year in the bottoming out of the farm equipment market." He said they expect retail buying in 1978 to equal 1977.

Jack E. Johnson, president of Steiger Tractor Company which manufactures high horsepower four-wheel drive tractors, said his firm anticipates a slow and gradual recovery of demand in the coming crop year.

Robert H. Rawson of Empire Plow Company said his firm expects activity to remain "flat, at about the same level as the slow 1977 year."

W. R. Long, president of Long Manufacturing, said the outlook for the coming year "looks somewhat bleak" with a decrease in sales except in the area of grain storage equipment, which he said should be equal to or above this year.

John E. Love, president of J. E. Love Company, said imbalances have developed which "will limit the agricultural economy's ability to continue its rapid expansion."

Three month

In Norway he ate more fish than when he stayed in Sweden, where pork and ham were served frequently.

The area of Sweden in which Jay lived was about 15 miles from the largest lake in the country and was very flat. His host owned a good sized farm consisting of 150 acres. On it he raised 100 sows, two boars, and finished 150 hogs for market.

When the Spring of this year rolled around, Jay was needed back on his host farm in Norway, so he returned to learn more about beekeeping.

"My Swedish host family and I became very close," reflects Jay. "I think that's part of the reason I learned the most there."

Then, this June, after a year in Europe, Jay came home to Lebanon. He won't be staying in the area long, however, because he's joined the Navy and begins training on December 15.

And, what were his biggest benefits from spending a year in Europe?

"Well, I think I grew up," he says hesitatingly. "I know I have more to go, but some of my priorities have really changed."

He also came back with a new slant on his view of America.

"Anywhere I went, I found out that everybody thinks his own country is the best. If you talk to a German, he'll say his country is the best, and the same goes for a Swede or a person from Norway. And, I came to realize that we aren't necessarily the greatest country in the world - just the luckiest," he said.

Explaining his viewpoint, Jay pointed out how blessed the United States is with natural resources, saying, "I'm still proud to be an American, but I realize we're lucky."

Reviewing the FFA Work Experience Abroad program he said, "It's great, I'd recommend it to anyone."

Top Greenhands chosen

FREDERICKSBURG - The top three Greenhands from each school offering vocational instruction in Lebanon and Schuylkill counties competed against one another Thursday evening during a Leadership Training Program held here. Organized by Harvey Smith, area consultant to the FFA, the day's activities included a Greenhand quiz contest as well as group instruction for Chapter officers.

The top eight Greenhands from Lebanon County were: 1. John Arnold, ELCO; 2. Dean Patches, Norlebo; 3. Daryl Landis, Annville-Cleona; 4. Glen Wenger, ELCO; 5. John Kline, ELCO; 6. Tom Arnold, Cedar Crest; 7. Ann Weaver, Norlebo; and 8. Mark Brehm, Norlebo.

Schuylkill County FFA chapters fielded: 1. Dennis Fidler, Blue Mountain; 2. Jeff Schwartz, Tri-Valley; 3. Steve Snyder, Tri-Valley; 4. Scott Tucker, Blue Mountain; 5. Garry Michaels, Tri-Valley; and 6. Kent Heffner, Blue Mountain.

The contest was held to make each beginning FFA member more aware and familiar with the FFA. Group instruction sessions, which were open to all levels of vo-ag students, offered participants a closer look at the procedures and responsibilities of being an officer in the organization.

Sun-powered bug killer developed

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. - In a pioneering experiment, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) are using solar energy to operate insect survey traps.

Insect survey traps determine population patterns of harmful insects. Information obtained by the traps can be used to reduce damage to crops in effective insect control programs.

One of the traps used for the experiment attracts insects by a fluorescent blacklight. The other kills the insects on a electric grid after they have been attracted by a synthetic sex attractant.

The data gathered on insects collected by these traps go into computer programs which will enable scientists to predict future insect populations.

The advantage of the solar-powered traps is that they may be placed wherever desired, however remote. Since sunlight reaches distant fields the power lines can not, lack of power availability no longer hampers long-term studies.

Solar cells, originally developed to power satellites in outer space, are now being used for a variety of applications on Earth.

Experience helped 4-H queens prepare for reign

By Sally Bair
Feature Writer

For 1977 4-H Queens Kim Weaver and Lisa King, experience paid off. Kim, the senior 4-H queen, was the junior queen in 1975. Lisa, the junior 4-H queen, was first runner-up last year in the junior queen contest held annually in Lancaster County as part of Achievement Day.

Both expressed the feeling that the first time around gave them a slight advantage - although it did not dispel their nervousness, at least they knew what to expect throughout the judging.

All contestants were selected by their local clubs, and then five finalists were selected in a preliminary judging. The night of the contest the finalists in each category were interviewed on stage by WGAL TV's Bob Malick, and each had individual interviews with the judges prior to the contest.

For Kim, her selection as senior queen came as a complete surprise. "I was very shocked," she said. "It was hard to believe when they announced my name."

A junior at Solanco High School, Kim is helping manage the varsity hockey team, and sings with the mixed chorus and choral. She also hopes to be in a musical if the school has one this year. She is a member of the Mechanics Grove Mennonite Church and is active in their youth activities. She enjoys singing with the Solanco Sing Out group, which sings "anywhere they ask us." The group traveled to New York State for several appearances this Summer, and Kim said, "That trip brought us together as a group and made us closer. People were really appreciative of our program."

Kim likes to play the autoharp and says her main hobby is crafts, although sewing and cooking are popular pastimes.

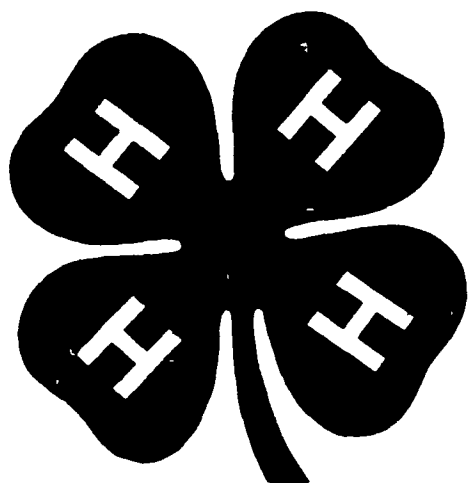

"And if I get the time," she added, "I enjoy reading."

Kim enjoys working with her steers and showing them, and has had varying successes with them over the years. She said she had grand champion at the Solanco Fair her first year in 4-H, but has been teased since then that it was simply

Kim represented the Red Rose 4-H Beef and Sheep Club where she had been a member for seven years. She remembers having to answer a question during her on-stage interview about how 4-H would help her in the future. She recalled saying, "It will help me get along with people, and help in public speaking. 4-H also helps you learn about winning and losing, and helps you to accept failures and your decisions. It taught me to keep on trying if I don't succeed the first time."

Kim said she feels 4-H is a definite learning experience for young people, and a fun learning experience at that. "It helps you to develop hobbies, and as an individual it helps you to develop leadership and responsibility. Since you meet all kinds of people it helps you learn to get along and give a little."

Speaking up for 4-H will be a natural for Kim. She was a blue ribbon winner in state competition in public speaking. "I was pleased with that," she said, "It was my first year and I wasn't expecting it." She said she decided to enter the public speaking program because "I had just had it in school and always liked it. I had fun preparing my speech."

Her speech was on making the 4-H pledge meaningful. "I broke down the pledge and made it personal," she said, adding that all of her 4-H experiences have helped her gain confidence in public speaking. In the beef club every member learns to be a public speaker, because, as Kim put it, "From my very first year I had to give a report on my animal. At first I was scared to death." She also gained some speaking ability as a member of last year's winning junior livestock team at State Days, and credits a Women's Christian Temperance Union public speaking contest with helping her.

Earlier, Kim had been a member of the Solanco Community Club, and although not a member this year, she assisted the cooking club leaders this Summer. She said, "I really had fun. Sometimes I had some quick thinking to do."

beginners luck. This year she was second in her class, but was champion fitter and reserve champion showman.

Does she mind selling her projects? "In a way it is hard to sell, but it really depends upon the steer. I always look forward to next year and another steer and I try to think I'll start over and do things differently."

Working with her steers, Kim says, has been fun, but also an education. "It helped me with responsibility and I find it is a way to relate to people. At fairs it is fun to talk with little children or people who don't know anything about steers."

She added, "You can really tell if you work on the steer. It has really helped me overcome some of my own fears and I must discipline myself and train myself along with the steers."

Kim says she joined the 4-H primarily because she had fun helping her older brother and three older sisters with their projects. "It was something I always knew I would do." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Weaver, Quarryville R2, and her father is a leader in her club.

Her future is uncertain, although she is presently leaning toward a career as a nurse. Her cheerful disposition would be welcome in any sickroom, and will be an asset to Lancaster County's 4-H program.

JUNIOR QUEEN

Junior 4-H Queen Lisa King, Gordonville, has been a 4-H'er for just four years as a member of the Pequea Valley Sewing and Cooking Club. She has had four sewing and four cooking projects, and served as song leader and vice president.

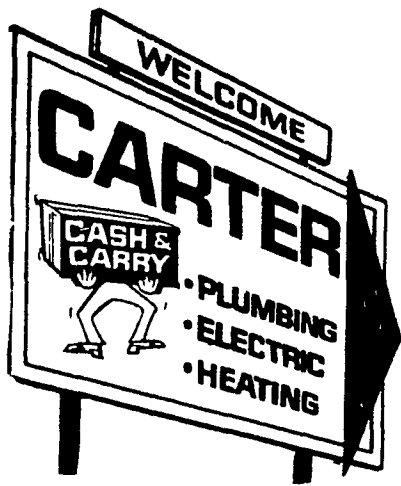

Lisa joined 4-H at the encouragement of her teachers at Pequea Valley High School and said, "4-H is a good place to make new friends and to learn to share and cooperate. It also teaches you to be patient and to keep on going. I will want to be a teen leader."

"I pledge my head to clearer thinking..."

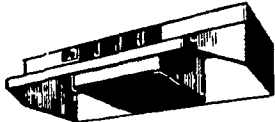

Senior 4-H Queen Kim Weaver has carried beef projects for seven years. Here she works with her current project, an Angus-Chianina cross which she hopes will develop into a winner.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

"The goldenrod is yellow, the corn is turning brown and trees in apple orchards with fruit are beinding down." This line from a poem which I memorized in school many years ago, comes back to haunt me every Fall as it is only too true.

As we returned from a day at the Bloomsburg Fair, the roadsides were covered with goldenrod and the brown fields of corn awaited the cornpickers. And apples - everywhere we looked they were for sale. Some on front lawns, some on the back of pick-up trucks and some at farm markets. We couldn't come home without our share, so we purchased a basket of Jonathans and one of McIntosh. As our family likes quinces, we brought some of them home too but they are two or three times as expensive as apples - maybe, because of their scarcity. And to top it all off, we added a gallon cider.

Speaking of scarcity, our black walnuts seem to have a very small crop this year. It is just as well for me, as now I'll use the nuts that I've stored the last two years. And, there seems to be plenty of shellbarks to take up the slack.

xxx

They say one gets out of something what one puts into it. In this case our 13-year-old daughter, who is 5 feet 9 inches tall, has put many hours and days into practicing with the school marching band. However, it seems that whenever they go to a parade it rains. Some performances are rescheduled and then cancelled and rescheduled again. So, their uniforms have not gotten wet, but they have not accomplished what they set out to do, either.

The one good thing that has come from all the time consumed in this particular activity has been the improved posture of our tall daughter. And that is worth something, too.

A couple of years ago when I had the privilege of spending a few weeks living with an Irish Farm family through a special 4-H program, part of the activities included tours of some of the large farm estates in that country. We were privileged to see a dairy farm in operation, tour an agricultural college, and at close hand, inspect a large beef operation.

It was the beef farm that intrigued me. When we went out into the pastures to see the livestock, the first thing I noticed was that the fence consisted of a single strand electric fence - just straight wire, not even barbed. And everywhere in that pasture were these beautiful docile creatures who obviously never even let it enter into their minds that there was a possibility of escape.

Now here at the home front, back in the U.S.A., I could name cattle that only believed a single strand smooth electric fence was something you walked through on your way to the cornfield. Those cattle were gymnasts, the way they could twist, crawl, and maneuver through such a fence faster than the eye could follow the action.

So it was natural for me to be so fascinated by the fact that these Irish cattle seemed to respect such a fence. In fact, I was considering the possibilities of having some imported to our farm so I would no longer spend some of my time hotfooting it behind marauding cattle.

Then our Irish host went on to say how the electricity in that part of Ireland wasn't too dependable and occasionally went off, he still didn't have problems with his cattle getting out? How could this be, I asked him.

The man gravely beckoned me over closer to him. Expecting to hear a great secret revealed, I eagerly moved forward.

Softly he whispered into my ear, "We don't tell the cattle when the electric is off."

Oh, may the glorious Irish wit live on forever and the gullibility of young American girls be quickly forgotten.

When you get serious about heating with wood, you should consider the "DownDrafter".

The principle behind this stove is to force the unburnt volatile gases back through the bed of coals, producing more efficient burning plus a slower, more even burning of the fire.

FOOD ADDITIVES

Oregano, nonfat dry milk, and citric acid seem too dissimilar to be grouped together under one classification. But all three—a spice, a binder, and a chemical preservative—do have something in common. They are food additives.

According to USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), food additives approved for use in meat and poultry products are divided into three basic categories:

— Flavoring components, which are added to food for flavoring purposes only, such as sugar, garlic, pepper, oregano, and other spices and herbs.

— Nutritional substances and substances added to produce a physical effect that also have nutritional value as a food. For example, whey products, nonfat dry milk powder, flours, starches, and other similar extenders help bind together ingredients as well as add nutritional value to meat products such as sausages, luncheon meats, and meat patties.

— Substances which are intended only to affect the product's physical characteristics, such as gums, cures, phosphates, and antioxidants. For example, citric acid, a chemical preservative, may be used in cured pork and beef cuts and sausage products to maintain color during storage. These substances usually have little or no nutritional value as a food.

The initial safety of food additives is determined by the Food and Drug Administration. However, if an additive is to be used in conjunction with meat or poultry products, it also must be approved by USDA.

USDA must determine that the additive will not cause a meat or poultry to be adulterated or misbranded; establish appropriate limits or restrictions on the additive's use in meat or poultry products; and determine that the additive is effective and produces the intended result in the product.

SNAPPY LEGWEAR

Warm, perky legwear coordinates with Fall fashions in a variety of patterns, textures and lengths. Bulky hunting socks are ribbed, striped, cabled or tweed, as are anklets, knee-highs, thigh-highs and tights. Legwarmers and leggings, which gained popularity in Europe last Winter, will be part of our layered fantasy look this Fall. Pantyhose are patterned, lacy, colorful.

An acrylic and elastic thigh-high shapes up in a shadow, twilight, and splash pattern. An anklet in a silk, cotton, nylon and rayon blend comes in navy and white. A bulky hunting look stops just below the knee and is made of 80 per cent wool and 20 per cent nylon.

Legwarmers are available in a variety of washable, sweater textures. A fisherman's knit or Nordic pattern is popular. An ankle-to-thigh fisherman's knit legwarmer is done in natural-colored, easy-care acrylic to go with a matching hat and muffler.

Romantic evening wear is accented by traditionally feminine nylon pantyhose. Conventional sheers and opaques function beautifully with the soft fabrics of dresses and skirts. For the nostalgic buff, the seamed "stocking" has returned. This time, in a nylon pantyhose with a mock seam sewn up the back. Tiny petals, geometrics, and flowers are scattered on other hose fashions, or run up one side of the leg. Herringbone, in Winter white, burgundy or navy offers a bolder look. Tailored lace hose in cream, beige, brown, black, navy, berry, and rust match a palette of Fall fashions.

Also on hand are snappy bootcovers, which roll down over boots to the heel and slouch socks, worn rolled over shorter boots or shoes.

For a fun look, try wearing a pair of gaily colored anklets over contrasting tights. Or, roll up a pair of leggings to reveal coordinating ribbed pantyhose.

The Range

This is "Chicken Week" in Home on the Range, but it's not for the faint-hearted. Thanks to the National Broiler Council, (NBC) who supplies delicious recipes cooked up in their kitchen, we will travel 'round the world in the first five recipes.

According to NBC, almost everybody in the world loves chicken, and almost every country has a favorite way of preparing it.

Probably the most compatible foreign cuisine with our tastes is that of Germany. Since most of the readers in our coverage area have some cultural tie to that country, and since Germans don't season their foods as highly as other peoples, many homemakers will want to introduce their families to the delights of foreign cuisine with our first two recipes, "German Chicken Burgundy" and "Deluxe German Chicken and Sauerkraut."

On the "hotter" side of things, foods that originated with the Indians of what is now Mexico include corn, chili peppers (both red and green), squash, pumpkins, tomatoes and avocados. To these tasty ingredients, the Spanish conquerors added chicken, olives and other European foods. The combination produced many new dishes which have become a part of American cuisine, especially in the Southwest.

While some authentic Mexican dishes are so highly seasoned the eater may think his mouth is on fire, others are mild with a subtle range of flavors to tantalize even the most conventional palate. Plain roasted chicken is rare in traditional Mexican cooking, partly because in the old days chickens were so tough they had to be boiled for hours before they could be eaten. Today's broiler-fryers are young and tender, but Mexicans generally still believe that some type of sauce should be added to all foods.

This week's Mexican selection is "Chicken Stuffed Avocado."

The last, but not least, international recipes in this week's column come from India. Indian recipes were among the earliest to become part of American cuisine because British soldiers serving in India brought the exotic taste back to their native land. Early homemakers in New England and the South found it easy to serve curried foods in the New World as trading vessels frequently brought spices to the seaports of the East Coast.

Spices have been a part of Indian cooking for several thousand years and chicken has been and continues to be a cherished meat. Curry seasoning adds a new interest to the natural flavor of chicken.

Today's nutrition-conscious homemakers, who know the value of chicken's high protein low-calorie content and are adventurous in planning their families' menus, will appreciate the five recipes below created by the National Broiler Council. They have all the excitement of international dining but are easily prepared with readily-available ingredients.

The last five recipes are All-American favorites sent to us by our readers.

DELUXE GERMAN CHICKEN AND SAUERKRAUT

Remove chicken from bones; chop into small cubes. Add one tablespoon of lemon juice, chopped celery, green pepper and onions. Stir in mayonnaise and Worcestershire sauce to complete stuffing. Peel and slice avocados in half. Squeeze lemon juice over all sides of avocado and sprinkle with onion salt. Place each avocado halve in baking dish and fill generously with chicken stuffing. Boil and stir until thick, about five to seven minutes. Add tomato juice and chopped chicken. Pour into refrigerator container and chill overnight to allow blending of flavors. At serving time, return to skillet and add lime juice. Heat thoroughly and serve on hot fluffy rice with an assortment of any of the following condiments: chutney, crushed pineapple, bacon bits, min-cement, flaked coconut, sliced bananas, chopped peanuts. Makes six servings.

Curried Chicken, above, an early international favorite in this country, is a simple way to add new interest to a meal for family or guests.

EASY CURRIED CHICKEN

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken cut in parts
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 2 4-ounce cans mushrooms, drained
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 4 teaspoons curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon powdered ginger
- 2 10½-oz. cans cream of chicken soup
- 1 cup unflavored yogurt
- ½ cup toasted whole almonds

Melt butter in large skillet over medium-high heat. Brown chicken parts about 15 minutes. Remove and arrange in casserole dish. Add onions and mushrooms to remaining butter in skillet. Saute only until onions are clear, not brown. Remove excess fat. Add curry powder, ginger, and cream of chicken soup to onions and mushrooms. Mix well and pour over chicken parts in casserole. Bake uncovered in pre-heated 350 degrees F. or 175 degrees C. for one hour. Remove chicken parts and mix in yogurt. Replace chicken and sprinkle with toasted almonds. Serve immediately on fluffy saffron or white rice. Side dishes of chutney, crystallized ginger, coconut, fried raisins and chopped green pepper may be served with this curry for added interest. Makes four to six servings.

She said she found the queen contest "really fun," and added, "I was fortunate to get an easy question during the stage interview." He question concerned how to convince friends to join 4-H. She recalls saying, "4-H is an educational program which will help you in your future. And you'll be really glad if you join." She also talked about learning to cooperate with others.

When her name was announced as winner, Lisa said, "I was really, really surprised. I couldn't believe it. I was really happy." She recalled that last year while she was pleased to be a finalist, she thought how nice it would be to be queen.

An eighth grader at Locust Grove Mennonite School, Lisa says readily, "I love school." Sewing is another avid interest of Lisa's and at the time of this interview she was busy sewing clothes for school. She said she enjoys sewing her school clothes and said she has been sewing for some time, first with her mother's help, and then by developing her skills in 4-H.

She likes to read mysteries, and said, "I like to ride my bike and I love to cook. I make up my own recipes, and I put together whatever I feel like." She said she has been cooking since she was seven and is particularly happy with her cooking group in 4-H. "It is really nice. We have a small group, and so each has a bigger part in what we make."

In school Lisa plays field hockey, and to get in shape she ran around her home several times daily this Summer.

Lisa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin M. King, and because of them she has another unique ability: she knows sign language. Each parent became deaf in his childhood, and Lisa and her brother Darvis, 5, and sister Vanessa, 10, all use signs easily. Lisa's ambition has been colored by her experiences.

"I'd like to go to college for the deaf and learn to be an interpreter. I would really like to combine being a physical education teacher and an interpreter." Lisa explained that signs are changing and there is an attempt to get a universal sign language, so that "one sign applies to all."

Having deaf parents, Lisa said, has helped her to be more aware of others. "My mother has told me that I was always more aware of other children when I was little. I always got involved and tried to make new friends." She and her family are members of the First Deaf Mennonite Church, Witmer. Lisa can also transmit on a special western union telephone which permits deaf people to "speak" to one another by typing a message which is transmitted by phone to a special receiver in someone else's home.

Lisa said she enjoyed her first television appearance and is now busily participating in the fairs and fair parades. She and Kim have a few more commitments 4-H events, but they both feel they'd like to expand their duties as 4-H queens and take on more responsibility.

Their eagerness, combined with natural charm and attractiveness, will be an asset as they represent Lancaster County's 4-H program.

On being a farm wife —And other hazards

By JOYCE BUPP

One man's junk really is another man's treasure. And exchanging junk and treasures has become a popular pastime in our area, emerging in the form of countless yard and garage sales

A garage sale is a perfectly respectable place to dispose of unwanted, unused and out-dated odds-n-ends flying around the house and basement. I mean, getting 50 cents for something makes you feel much less guilty about unloading the clutter than simply putting it out for the weekly garbage collection.

So when a friend recently invited me to participate in a neighborhood garage sale she was hosting, I readily agreed to houseclean a bit, make some contributions and devote my share of time to manning the operation. Then I promptly became busy with roundups and cow shows, and completely forgot about it.

A week before the scheduled opening "sale" day, the promise suddenly popped back into my head. Covering two steps at a time, I jogged to the attic to take inventory of a dusty accumulation of artifacts from a 13-year marriage and two children.

Would you believe I emerged from that attic sometime later, empty-handed? Nobody was getting my treasures! After all, pointed-toed shoes might come back in style some day, and my dozen pairs will be just waiting to step into. When the time eventually comes that I'm known as "Grandma," the few toys left in one piece can be recycled. Several years of toddlers and two housecats have eliminated extra knick-knacks and objects d'art. And one entire corner of our fourth-floor "Smithsonian" is filled with a comprehensive library of don't-you-dare-touch dairy magazines and cow sale catalogs

The foolish thought flashed through my searching brain that perhaps I'd do better remmaging contributions from the machinery workshop and toolshed. After mulling that idea over for a full two seconds, I concluded that it would probably be easier to heist gold bars from Fort Knox.

In sheer desperation, I finally admitted that the only thing my packrat character would even consider giving up were a few excess houseplants from the overflowing greenhouse. Throwing cactus and baby tears into pots, we were off with a triumphant offering at last.

But what am I gonna' do with this garage that I bought?

Top hog goes for $3/pound

By SALLY BAIR

NEW HOLLAND - Market hogs at the New Holland Farm Show 4-H sale brought record high prices last Friday afternoon, with the 18 head averaging $.91 per pound. Esta Lapp's grand champion was purchased by Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse, for $3.00. Stoltzfus Meats had also purchased the grand champion steer on Thursday.

Esta, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lapp, Kinzers R1, showed last year's grand champion and recalled that her animal brought just $1.60 at that sale.

Sixteen-year-old Esta said she found it "exciting" to have grand champion again and to have the sale go so well. She has been a member of the New Holland Community Club for six years and was especially pleased with how easy her Landrace-

Hampshire project was to show.

The reserve champion, owned by Mark McCauley, Kinzers R1, was sold for $1.95 and was purchased by Hatfield Packing Company, Montgomery County. Hatfield's purchased four other animals in the sale.

Mark, who was completing his first year in 4-H, said he was happy with the results. He said, "I will save my money." Mark is the son of Donald McCauley.

The third place animal, shown by David Fisher, East Earl R2, sold to New Holland Sales Stables for $1.00. In fourth place, James Martin's animal brought $1.10 and was purchased by Earl Sauder, Inc. Martin lives at New Holland R2.

New Holland Sales Stables purchased the fifth, sixth and seventh place animals for $.95, $.65, and $.64 respectively. Owners were Michael McCauley, Kinzers R1; William Hughes, East Earl R1; and Brian McCauley, Kinzers R1.

The remaining 11 animals brought from a low of $.45 to a high of $.90. Purchasers of the remaining animals included Walter Dunlap, Lancaster Stockyards; Les Weaver Auctioneering Service, Inc.; Earl Sauder, Inc.; New Holland Sales Stables; and Hatfield Packing Company.

Auctioneer for the event was Robert Martin.

Jones sues Bob Bergland

BLUE BALL - A lawsuit in the name of Lester Jones, president of Inter-State Milk Producers, has been brought against United States Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, it was announced recently at the annual dinner meeting of Inter-State's District 6 at the Blue Ball fire hall.

Although the suit is in the name of Lester Jones, it is backed by Pennmarva.

The basic objection Inter-State has to the new Federal Order is that it has lowered the price relationship of Order 2 to the Mid West by 15 cents.

A hearing will be held on October 13 in Federal District Court in Philadelphia concerning the matter.

The suit, filed September 26, is a request for an injunction to keep the new Federal Order from going into effect. Although the suit is in the name of Lester Jones, it is backed by Pennmarva.

Part of the Tuesday evening annual dinner included the awarding of 25 year membership plaques and certificates. This year's recipient was Glenn G. Miller, Gap R1. Miller milks a herd of 40 registered and grade Holstein.

Stauffer Diesel is No. 1

NEW HOLLAND - Stauffer Diesel, Inc. of Lancaster County has been named the top Deutz tractor dealer in the North Central Region of Deutz Corporation for the first quarter of this year.

As the winning dealer, Amos Stauffer, head of the dealership, was given a 1977 Pinto hatchback.

Keys to the car were presented to Stauffer by Joe Cox, regional manager for the tractor firm, at a special meeting held at the Quality Court in Carlisle. Attending the meeting were Don Pyle, national sales manager for Deutz and Terry Shawver, district manager for Deutz in the area.

Stauffer competed with 135 other dealers in the region for the prize. Stauffer is one of the oldest Deutz tractor dealers in length of service and is one of the original Deutz air-cooled diesel engine dealers, which were introduced in the U.S. during the early 1950s.

Automation: a technological process that performs all the work while we just sit there. When we were kids, the process was called Mother.

Amos Stauffer, head of Stauffer Diesel, Inc., New Holland, received the keys to a 1977 Pinto hatchback from Joe Cox, region manager for Deutz Corporation, for becoming the top Deutz tractor dealer in the region for the first quarter of 1977. Nutrena Controlled Release CLS — so different, it's patented

Your cattle will like Nutrena Controlled Release CLS and you'll like the benefits behind this new development in liquid supplements. The patented process controls the release of protein-building ammonia nitrogen in the rumen compared with a conventional urea-based liquid supplement. This improves the feeding efficiency of the urea. And, the slow-down means an extra margin of safety from urea toxicity—that's important when self-feeding liquid supplement.

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS liquid supplement—a product of Cargill research. It's great for dairy herds as well as beef cattle on range, pasture, stalks, stubble or in the feedlot.

co-op

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The board of directors of the Delaware Valley Farmers Co-Operative, here, has announced a refund to it's customers in the amount of $102,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1977, to be distributed this month. The Delaware Valley Co-op is a non-profit organization and is operated strictly on a cooperative basis. This means that all money made over and above costs is returned to the customers. At the end of each year, the board of directors determines the amount of money to be refunded to Co-Op customers. These refunds are based on the amount of the customer's total purchases for the year. During the past seven years, the progressive feed producer has refunded over $450,000.

President of the Co-Op, Walter Rosenstock, who heads G & G Egg Receivers and it's subsidiary, Garden State Egg Co., stated he was very pleased to be able to return the above refunds to the Co-Op customers. "This past year was a very successful one for the Co-Op and it's customers, and I feel the coming year shows prospects of being as progressive and profitable."

A PARTING —FROM THE PAINTING BY MARIANNE STOKES

A calf, a lamb, an ear of corn;
A hand-sewn dress, a home-baked cake;
Horses and heifers and rabbits;
Butterflies, flowers and photographs;
Woodcrafts, canned goods and even goats.

All these things represent 4-H clubs where the idea is to learn by doing.

We sincerely appreciate the skills as well as the high standards of conduct our young people learn through 4-H club work.

Dobrosky's lamb is champ

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

STEWARTSTOWN - Laurie Dobroski captured grand champion honors of the York County 4-H lamb roundup during a show and sale Monday at Sechrist Sales, Stewartstown.

The 90 pound Dorset wether went first into the sales ring and was purchased for $1.37 per pound by Miller's Country Market, York R8. Laurie, 15, has been exhibiting project sheep for seven years and is a member of the York County Lamb Club and the Glen Rock Community Club. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Dobrosky, Glen Rock R2.

Reserve grand champion placing was taken by 13 year old Jim Jefferis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jefferis, Delta R2. A crossbred animal, the 95 pound lamb was auctioned off in the number two spot, bringing young Jefferis $1.10 per pound from the J.L. Miller and Sons Meat Market, York R8.

Pam Jefferies, Delta R2, exhibited the champion Hampshire, weighting in at 90 pounds and selling to Dealaman Enterprises, Warren, N.J., for 68 cents per pound. The top placing Suffolk topped the scales at 105 pounds, owned by Donna Arendt, Glen Rock R3, and was purchased for 77 cents per pound by Thomas' Meat Market, Shrewsbury.

The champion Southdown belonged to Lisa Dobrosky and weighed in at 90 pounds. Ervin Rappoldt, Glen Rock R1, purchased the lamb for 89 cents per pound. Jim Caudill exhibited the 65 pound champion Cheviot which was purchased by Dealaman Enterprises, Warren, N.J.

Judges for this first of two county lamb roundups were Terry Shearer, Pidgeon Hill Farm, Abbottstown, and Bill Holloway, South Branch Farm, York R8.

In the breed classes, Jim Jefferis dominated the Shropshire division with his animal that won the lightweight division championship, and reserve grand champion ribbon. Mark Ebaugh exhibited the first place heavyweight and reserve division winner, as well as the second place lightweight. Second place heavyweight went to Terry Flory.

Pam Jefferis captured both the grand and reserve champion Hampshires, with lambs that placed first and second in the heavyweight division. Lightweight winners were: Chris Waltersdorff, first; Pam Jefferis, second; Pam Jefferis, third, and Don Flory, fourth. The Waltersdorff sisters took three placings in the lightweight division, with Judy in first place, Chris in second and Linda in third.

Dorset division grand champion and winner of the lightweight category was shown by Laurie Dobrosky, who then went on to take the grand championship of the show. Reserve Dorset championship was won by Shane Seidenstrickler, with his first place heavyweight. Second and third heavyweight spots were won by Don Flory, and second and third places in the light heavyweights went to Mike Arendt. Shane Seidenstrickler also took the first place lightweight winning, with Mike Arendt in second and Brian Bankert in third.

Laurie Dobrosky, right, exhibited this grand champion 4-H market lamb during the first of two county roundups. Ray Mummert and his daughter, Ann, purchased the lamb for Miller's Country Market at $1.37 per pound.

Buyer Ray Mummert and daughter Ann also purchased the reserve market lamb for J.L. Miller and Sons Meat Market. Pam Jefferis showed the crossbred animal for her brother, Jim.

Lone exhibitors in two classes were Jim Caudill who won the championship Cheviot and Lisa Dobrosky with the winning Southdown. Suffolks made up the largest division exhibition, with the top spot awarded to Donna Arendt, and reserve honors won by Troy Ness. Those two animals were winners also of their 100-105 weight class, with third and four placings taken by Troy Ness and Jim Jefferies.

Other suffolk winners were: 85-90 pound class Michele Bankert, first; Linda Ebaugh, second; Donna Arendt, third and Jim Caudill, fourth; 90-95 pound class-Donna Arendt, first; Jim Jefferis, second; Michele Bankert, third and Linda Ebaugh, fourth. IN OPEN TOP BULK TANKS GIRTONS FLAT BOTTOM IS BETTER THAN THEIR ROUND BOTTOM

HERE'S WHY:

1. Eliminates condensation because a minimum of milk covers the entire cold plate.
2. Increases efficiency of cooling system because as soon as the bottom is covered the full cooling system is cooling milk, not air.
3. Makes less work because lower sides make it easier to pour milk into the tank. Lowest pouring tank on the market - 34 1/4" high.

A small quantity of milk completely covers the refrigerated bottom of the DIPLOMAT

The same quantity of milk, when put in a curved bottom tank, leaves large area of cold wall exposed.

LET BAZOOKA[®] GRAIN MOVING SYSTEMS DO THE WORK!

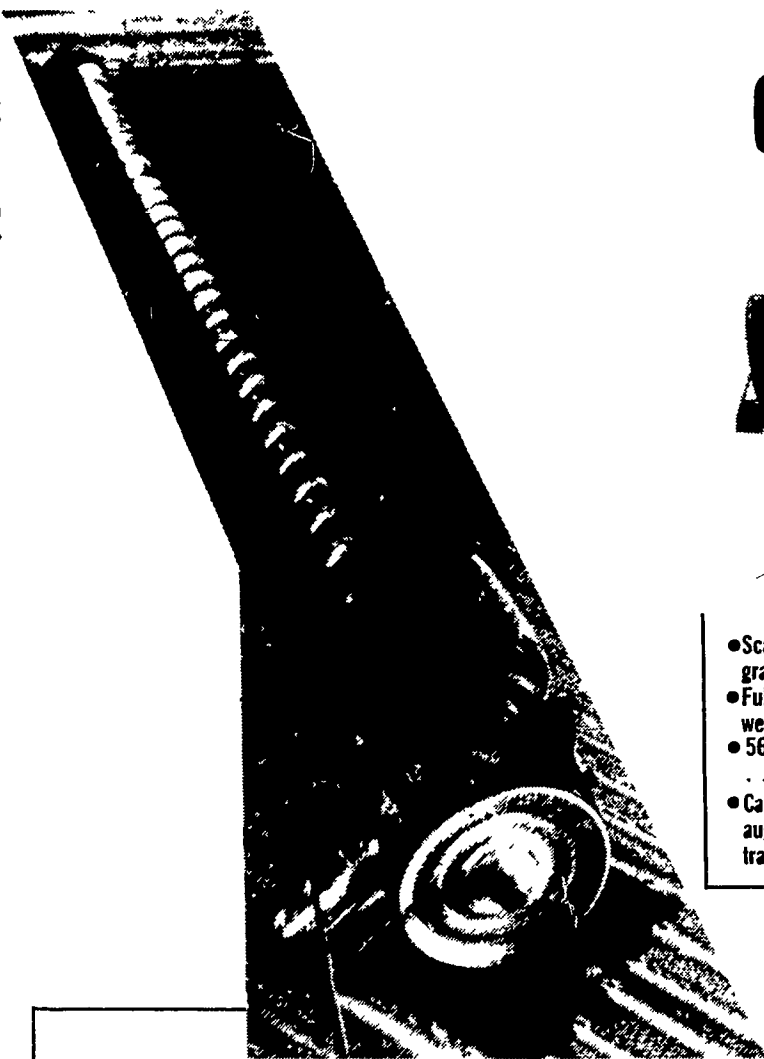

Components that move grain can be as important as the storage bins or drying bins you choose. Augers are the heart of your system because they do the work... keep you going during the busy harvest time.

Bazooka augers are long lasting and smooth running. You have a wide choice of capacities, accessories and drives. You can also expand any Bazooka system with a minimum of expense.

PORTABLE AUGERS

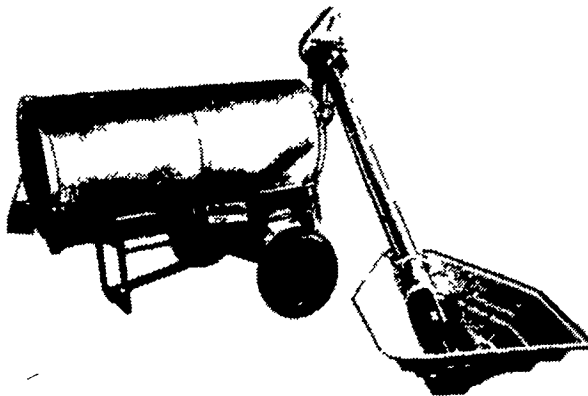

Bazooka 6" & 8" transports have intake flighting that is chrome plated to double its life, a galvanized drive shaft to reduce maintenance time, and permanently lubricated chain in a precision machined reducer drive with cast iron housing.

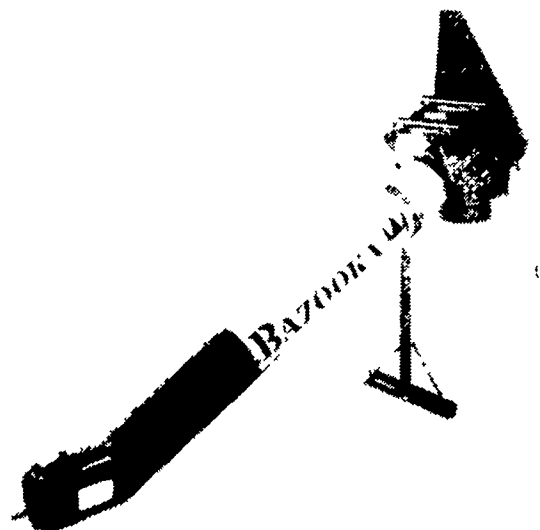

BIN SWEEPS

Bazooka portable bin sweeps available in several different sizes. Can easily be moved from one bin to another.

GRAINCLEAN'RTM

- Scals and cleans corn, milo, soybeans, wheat or rice to improve grade and storability
- Fully enclosed to prevent flying chaff, help control dust and give weather protection
- 56 sq. ft. of screen can remove 80% of fines in dry corn at 500 bu/hr ... up to 2000 bu/hr capacity
- Can be equipped with trailer undercarriage, tow bar and 6" or 8" fill auger which swivels beyond 180° rides on top of cleaner during transport

25° BIN UNLOADING AUGERS

A 6" horizontal powerhead is connected to an 8" auger to keep grain moving on the 25° incline as fast as it leaves the bin. 8" also available.

My Thoughts

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR
Assistant Editor

"Aawwk!"

My brother clutched his throat, and my dad winced in agony as he managed to get down his first swallow of food.

"What are you trying to do to us, Jo?" my brother demanded indignantly across the platters of food on the dinner table, letting his fork drop on his plate for emphasis.

I was flabbergasted. I'd just spent two whole hours preparing them a meal meant for royalty, and they hated it.

And, they didn't have the decency to hate it quietly, either. No sir, my brother had to start complaining, which broke my dad's constraint and made him start laughing, which in turn made my brother start giggling, which made me nearly cry.

Red faced and heartbroken, I sat midst all the tittering at the table with my mouth hanging open. What had gone wrong? Each separate dish had tasted great at the 4-H club meeting when we'd made them. Everybody had raved, including me. So, I was at a loss.

Looking at each dish, I reviewed each one very carefully.

Well, maybe I could have baked the cheese stuffed potatoes a little longer - that might have kept the cheese/potatoe filling from tasting and feeling like lumpy rubber cement. And, the macaroni in the macaroni and cheese casserole could have been boiled about 15 minutes more to take away the crunchy consistency. And, well, I had to admit to myself that the one side of the grilled cheese sandwiches (which were cold and could have served as building materials by this time) was, in fact, a bit charred. Actually, a few of them were a lot burned.

Then I spotted the salad - I couldn't have flubbed that. All it consisted of was lettuce, carrots, and tomatoes.

With renewed confidence, I blurted out indignantly, "What's wrong with the salad?"

"Nothing's wrong with the salad," my brother retorted immediately. "But, the Blue Cheese dressing is moldy."

Then, as an afterthought, he added with a cruel intonation, "I may never eat cheese again in my whole life." Dad snorted his consent.

With that last statement my brother pushed his veritably untouched plate of food away from him and stated flatly, "Maybe I can fill up on dessert - what are we having?"

It was my turn to snort.

"Cheesecake," I snickered.

Save Energy and get FREE HOT WATER... with the revolutionary...

MUELLER FRE-HEATER

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS.

Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water.

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to a storage tank.

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping" temperature water.

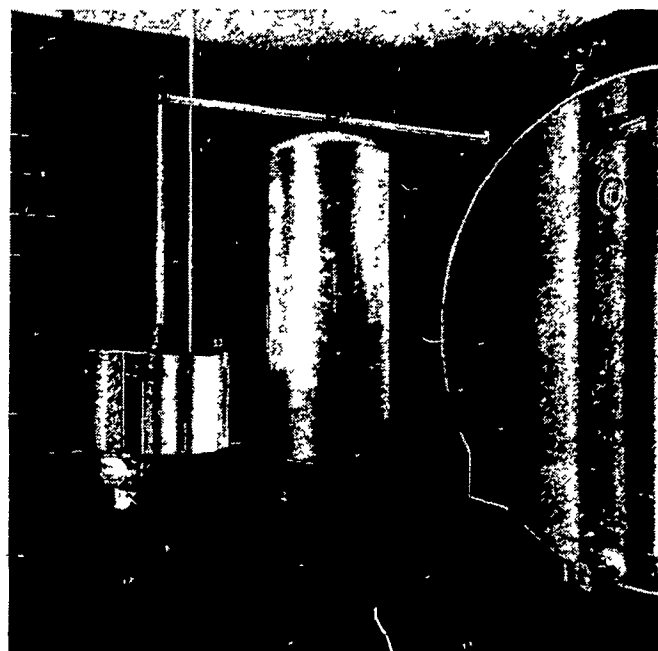

Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing.

Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system... and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!
The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser.

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because:

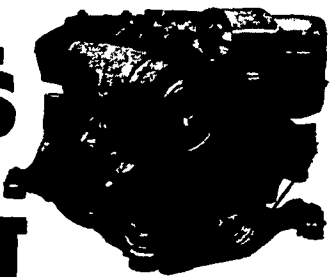

- There is no air-cooled condenser
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors
- There are no noisy fans to fail
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus... the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!

HOW MUCH WATER CAN BE GENERATED?

There are many variables, so this question cannot be answered directly, however, a rule of thumb is that a Fre-Heater operating on 60° F well water will produce a volume of 145° F water similar to the amount of milk produced during a milking.

It's easier to call an engine "heavy duty" than it is to build it that way. Superior performance and long life are the result of special alloy heads, integral lube coolers, oil cooled pistons, and the Deutz highly efficient axial flow cooling blowers. These features plus 100% direct air cooling result in substantial fuel savings — 20 to 40% according to users — and far less pollutants. Deutz air cooled diesels — 5 to 500 bhp.

Meat grading services to tighten

NEW YORK, N.Y. - Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of agriculture for Food and Consumer Services, has announced a series of actions which the U.S. Department of Agriculture will take to strengthen its meat grading service.

Noting that there have been several recent cases involving bribery and corruption between meat graders and meat packers, Ms. Foreman said, "we are determined to take whatever actions are necessary to fully maintain confidence and integrity in this service."

As soon as the necessary amendments can be drafted and published in the Federal Register, Ms. Foreman said that USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service (FSQS) will propose to revise current meat grading regulations.

In addition, FSQS is instituting long-range actions designed to provide better control of the meat grading

xxx
In Pennsylvania there are 333 separate State agencies, boards, departments and commissions.

service and to prevent illegal activities. Research is being undertaken to develop instruments and more objective methods than human judgement to use in determining grades of meat.

New procedures are being explored that will allow USDA to take immediate action to withdraw grading service from establishments that violate grading regulations. Currently, administrative procedures make this a lengthy and uncertain process.

Methods are also being explored to make it easier to assess more stringent penalties and sanctions against meat packers and meat graders who are convicted of meat grading violations.

Finally, a training program is being initiated to continually reemphasize the need for maintaining high standards of employee honesty, integrity, and ethical conduct in the performance of meat grading duties.

Judges visit farmers

York farmers to meet today

YORK - "People, Politics, Participation," the theme for the York County Farmers' Association Annual Meeting today, at Colonial Valley, Menges Mills.

"The 7 p.m. dinner meeting has been designed to offer family members of the county PFA ample opportunity to speak out, ask questions and determine their place in the sun," stresses York dairyman, Roger Perry, who serves as president of the York County Farmers Association.

Six directors will be elected from a slate prepared by the nominating committee operating under the direction of Ralph McGregor, East Berlin R1. He states, "Though the committee will be presenting a slate of suggested candidates, nominations from the floor will be welcomed. Boardmen are those who will be determining how effective York County Farmers' Association will function during the coming year."

Keynote speaker Chester Heim, director of PFA Public Affairs Programs will outline the PFA legislative programs and give an update of issues currently being considered on the Hill in Harrisburg and Washington.

Information tables for Insurance, Safemark, Farm Management Business Analysis Service, Pennsylvania Agriculture Employers Division, legal services and the cooperative marketing program will be available for handling member questions on a more personal basis than the past report system. County committee members and PFA staffers Jan Carson and Harry Aldefer and others will direct their attention to problems and suggestions as well as explain new programs in the PFA.

Only members in good standing who have paid their 1978 dues by the meeting time will be allowed to vote or to address issues on the floor. Secretary Aileen Dettler will issue credentials to members upon registration.

All paid members will be eligible for a drawing to win a PACMA ham. General door prize drawings will include all members present at the banquet meeting as well.

Committee sign-up sheets will seek to find members interested in working toward future goals within their commodity areas.

Maryland youths win livestock judging

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - Two brothers from Frederick County were members of Maryland 4-H and FFA teams which swept top honors in North Atlantic regional youth livestock judging during the Eastern States Exposition at West Springfield, Mass.

Tony Sears, 16, of Keymar was a member of the Maryland 'A' team which won first-place honors among five state teams competing in the 4-H livestock judging contest on Sept. 17. His brother, Roger, was a member of the Walkersville High School team which won first place for Maryland in the FFA contest that same day.

Their older brother, Nick Sears, had qualified as a member of the Maryland 4-H livestock judging team in 1975.

High individual this year for the Maryland 4-H livestock judging team at the West Springfield contest was Linda Clarke, 17, of Uniontown, Carroll County, who lives just a few miles away from the Sears brothers.

Linda was Maryland's reigning lamb and wool queen last year. Appropriately, she was high individual in 4-H sheep judging at West Springfield, as well as in swine judging. Another Carroll County resident on the Maryland 4-H team, Mark Cooney, 17, of Deep Run, was high individual in cattle judging. He also placed a close second to Miss Clarke in the over-all individual standings.

Jack D. Shanks, Jr., 16, of Damascus, Montgomery County, was a close second to Linda Clarke in sheep judging.

In the North Atlantic regional FFA livestock judging contest at West Springfield, Roger Sears of Keymar placed second in the over-all standings, and Robert Miller of Woodsboro, Frederick County placed fifth. Both were members of the winning Walkersville High School team.

Coaching the Maryland 4-H livestock judging team again this year is William A. Curry, Extension livestock specialist at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Maryland's 'B' team placed fourth among seven state teams competing in 4-H livestock judging during the Atlantic Rural Exposition and Virginia State Fair at Richmond, Va.

The team placed third in swine judging and fourth in both cattle and sheep placings, according to coach William A. Curry.

A team from Boonsboro High School, Washington County placed third for Maryland in the FFA division of the Eastern U.S. youth livestock judging event.

That team was coached by Eddie Mayne, vocational agriculture teacher and Montgomery County native, who is a University of Maryland graduate and a former member of Maryland 4-H and collegiate livestock judging teams.

Members of the Maryland 4-H team competing this year at the livestock judging event in Richmond were Kenny Bassler, 15, of Ellicott City, Doug Full, 17, of Mount Airy, Thomas Hoxie, 16, of LaPlata, and Margaret Spurrier, 16, of Union Bridge.

Bassler placed fifth among all individuals in 4-H swine judging at Richmond, and he finished sixth in over-all individual placings.

Young Farmers meet

ROBESONIA - A group of Young Farmers met last week at Conrad Weiser High School to hear Charles D. Hagan, Jr., district director of ASCS for Southeast Pennsylvania discuss the new acreage allotment program to be implemented by the government.

After giving a brief history of the programs, Hagan explained and answered questions concerning the new program. Because grain supplies are at very high levels, Congress is working on a set aside program which will hopefully limit production of certain grains. Presently the program is encouraging farmers to set aside 20 percent of the acreage of wheat planted last year, and will probably encourage 10 percent set aside of feed grains. "Remember," Hagan urged the farmers, "cheap grain means cheap milk, pork, beef, etc."

The farmers were also reminded that October 15 is the last day to report acreage of the 1977 crop.

Forney Longenecker, representative of Farmers Union also attended the meeting and gave a presentation on the union. He noted that the organization's official name is Farmers Educational and Cooperative Union of America and it was formed in 1902. Its purpose is to protect the farm family while trying to get target prices higher.

HART - THE NEW WHEAT

Hart Wheat is a new variety, a high yielder, and a medium early type. It has very good straw, medium short in length and is a bearded wheat. The 1977 crop had a high test weight per bushel and averaged a 15 per cent increase in yield over Redcoat Wheat. Hart can be combined a few days ahead of Redcoat and is moderately resistant to Hessian Fly. Hart responds to fertilizer and management much like Redcoat. It is a wheat that you should check out.

Life is a marathon in Belgium

Editor's Note: The following is a newsletter prepared by Nancy Henkel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henkel, Winterhill Road, Strasburg, who is a delegate from Lancaster County to Belgium in the International 4-H Youth Exchange. The International 4-H Youth Exchange is conducted by the National 4-H Council on behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service. Friends of 4-H in Lancaster County, the 4-H Council, 4-H clubs, service clubs, Farm Women groups and agri-business organizations assist in financing this exchange. This is the second in a series which Nancy will write from Belgium, her host country.

If you think that the pace of life slows down as you cross the ocean to Europe, then you haven't heard about Belgium! During the week, the people work hard in the fields, and when the weekends come the young people really take advantage of the "free time!" Sometimes I wonder if they try to make the weekends into a marathon to see who can keep their eyes open and their legs moving the longest. I have found Saturday and Sunday to be more exhausting than the weekdays.

I will describe some of the various events which I have attended. Since driving the tractor is an important function of the regular work week, I have found that tractor driving contests (gymkanas) are a favorite sport as part of the weekend festivities. At a gymkana the drivers are tested for their driving skills and physical agility against time. I am proud to report that the girls who compete are in the winner's circle, also.

Saturday nights are traditionally spend at a popular dance hall with the dancing beginning at 10 p.m. If you are wondering what type of music the Belgians listen to, I would estimate that it is 75-80 per cent American/English and 20-25 percent French. The type of dances are the "rock" which is a modified jitterbug; the "jerk" or the "bump"; and "slows" which are the same as in America. There is not too much disco-type dancing unless you go to one of the larger cities such as Brussels or Liege. Most of the dancing is the Sixties style with the "rock" and the "twist." At 4 a.m. the tired legs carry the exhausted bodies home.

Village festivals are always of great interest. One time during the Summer holidays each village holds a "fest" in which almost every community inhabitant takes part - young and old alike.

The festivity lasts for two days. One of these fests which I attended began with a dinner in the town hall after which people gathered in a tent filled with tables, chairs and the refreshment bar. There is a band which plays a collection of traditional songs and popular music. As the evening wears on there is increasing participation by the audience. At one or two o'clock the band retired and the villagers return to their homes. Another evening of singing and dancing is repeated on Sunday evening.

If you picture groups of people singing and toasting each other's health ("Sante" in French), then you have an idea of what some of the festivities in Belgium are like. As the glasses empty, the eyelids become heavy, and the body becomes tired, there is always the thought in the back of the mind that Monday is another day of work.

Some of the other activities which I have attended or participated in include private parties, claybird/trap shooting competition, kayaking, and a field trip to Luxembourg with an agricultural youth group. I have also visited a sugarbeet refinery, winery, and a brewery.

As you can see, the people really enjoy the time they have to spend with others - but they also work hard. I thank all those who have made it possible for me to spend time with these people. It is an unforgettable experience and the friends I've made will always be remembered.

ASC men updated

LEESPORT - The first of five districts of ASC personnel met for a two-day orientation recently at the Berks County Agricultural Center and later at the Sheraton Berkshire Inn, Wyomissing. The purpose was to update county committees on ASCS programs and to provide an opportunity to meet individually on an informal basis with the state ASC committee and program specialists.

The daily sessions were constructed to cover as much ASCS material as possible and to discuss the problems and concerns of the individual counties. Also stressed was the importance of establishing a vital communications network extending from the farm, through the ASC committees, to Washington, D.C. so that any program Congress may design in dealing with the surplus production of farm commodities can be administered effectively, since the ASCS will undoubtedly be involved.

Represented at the meetings were 12 southeastern counties by 11 county offices, the three state ASC committee members, state executive director, and all state program specialists. The counties were: Berks, Bucks, Carbon, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Monroe, Montgomery, Northampton, and Schuylkill.

Meetings have been set up for the other four districts in the state, the last to be held October 18 and 19.

To hold a lamb raffle

Pa. Jr. Suffolk Sheep Assn. is one of a kind

By JOANNE SPAHR
ATGLEN — The rooms were scattered with art materials, typewriters, and kids having a good time.

"Hi!" somebody said. "Com-mon in, we're working on our scrapbook."

The "we" in "we're" is the Pennsylvania Junior Suffolk Sheep Association, a branch of the only national junior sheep organization in existence.

In Pennsylvania the group consists of 23 individuals headed by Susan Hastings, the present Pennsylvania Suffolk queen, and organized four years ago by Dianne Keefauver, Newville, Pa., who is the president of the national junior organization.

According to the nine members who were gathered recently at the home of Mrs. Joan MacCauley, Atglen, an advisor to the group, the purpose of the organization is to promote Suffolk sheep and the sheep industry, in general, as well as provide fellowship among sheep breeders. The 23 members in the group come from the four corners of the state with two from New Jersey and Maryland.

"Those states don't have their own organizations," says Ms. Keefauver, "so we include them in our group. My next step is a regional organization."

The scrapbook the group was working on has to be ready by November 11 for the North American Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky., where the national organization as well as the national junior organization has its annual meeting in conjunction with the yearly Suffolk show.

During the Livestock Exposition, various competitions such as a scrapbook contest, a speech contest, a queen contest, and a National Ladies Lead Line (where the girls dress up in wool outfits to promote wool products) will be scheduled for the junior members.

"We also have six speakers taking part in the speech contest," says Ms. Keefauver.

According to the members, the Pennsylvania Association has quite a reputation to defend this year.

Last year the Pennsylvania had the first place scrapbook and the runner-up national queen. The year before that, the queen contestant from the commonwealth went all the way to the top.

"We want to win the scrapbook contest again," explained Ms. Keefauver, "because if you win three years in a row, you get to keep the trophy."

But, before the group can make its way toward the Kentucky bluegrass, it has to hold a fund raising to earn the finances for the trip. This takes place at the annual meeting held at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition on November 6.

Here, the group picks its Pennsylvania queen candidate, and its junior and senior representatives to the national showmanship contest also held at Louisville.

As a moneymaking project, they will set up a National Junior Suffolk Association booth to sell all

Berks Co. Farm Women celebrate 25 years

LEESPORT - Guests from 11 other counties joined members of Berks County Society of Farm Women in the celebration of their 25th anniversary last Saturday at the Berks County Agricultural Center. Highlighting the day long affair was an appearance by the newly crowned State Dairy Princess, Sandra Miller of Hamburg.

Miss Miller told the group of 170 women how surprised she was to win the state contest and that she would do her best to fulfill her duties as the State Dairy Princess. She went on to encourage the farm women to use milk and gave a presentation to explain why. Also entertaining the women was the "Melodears" from Shoemakersville and John Schucker who played the piano during the day.

Attendance awards were given to Berks County Society 1 of Oley Valley for having 21 out of their 25 members present. Scrapbook awards were given to Berks County Society 2, Berks County Society 6 of Oley, and Berks County Society 8 of Strausstown. Safety Awards were presented to all 11 groups of the county.

State President Lois Erb, Harrisburg, installed Carolyn Feeg of Berks County Society 5 as the new County Treasurer. Other activities of the day included a silent auction, dinner, songs and reports by group presidents.

Present at the 25th anniversary of the Berks County Farm Women Society were Carolyn Feeg, Womelsdorf, new county treasurer, Helen Ebling, Reading, county president, Barbara Kintzer, chairlady of the convention and cake decorator, and Lois Erb, Harrisburg, state president.

If the group is successful, they will sell an adequate amount of the one dollar tickets to them to Louisville and back.

This year should prove to be especially exciting because for the first time, the junior will represent Pennsylvania in the National show with several animals.

Farm income report printed

WASHINGTON, D.C. - USDA's Economic Research Service issued its annual State Farm Income Statistics last month. It shows little change in the top 10 states in cash receipts. California continued to lead in cash receipts, followed by Iowa, Texas and Illinois. Only switch in the top 10 was that Wisconsin, 12th in 1975, moved up to 9th; Ohio, 9th in 1975, fell to 11th position last year.

Iowa, Texas and California continued as the leaders in receipts from livestock; California, Illinois, Texas and Iowa continued to lead in receipts from crops.

The top 10 accounted for 52 percent of all cash receipts; 50 percent of receipts from livestock; 56 percent of those from crops. Pretty much the same as in 1975, when they accounted for 52 percent of all cash receipts, 50 percent of livestock, but 56 percent of those from crops.

The report also shows realized gross income per farm ranged from $7,570 (in West Virginia) to $148,534 (in California) and $229,573 (in Arizona) and averaged a record $37,303, up from 1975's $34,420 and topping the former high of $35,312 for 1974.

Realized net income per farm averaged $7,885, up from $7,410 in 1975; but, well below the $10,529 and $9,801 totals for 1973 and 1974, respectively.

Total net income per farm was down for the third straight year. At $7,203, it was off from $8,637 in 1975; $9,232 in 1974, and $11,727 in 1973.

EIA testing offered for exposed horses

HARRISBURG - Agriculture Secretary Kent D. Shelhamer has offered Pennsylvania horse owners and breeders "cost-free help" in the form of availability of the Department's Bureau of Animal Industry in testing horses exposed to active, clinical cases of equine infectious anemia (EIA).

EIA, also known as swamp fever, is a virus disease transmitted to horses and mules by bites from blood-sucking insects, Shelhamer said, who reminded horse owners of the 30 per cent mortality rate among infected animals. The disease does not affect humans, he indicated.

The agriculture official stated that cases of EIA have been reported in Perry, Northampton, and Lancaster Counties in recent months.

"We want to use the coggins test to trace the sources of EIA and, subsequently, to control the spread of the disease," Shelhamer declared. He said he would favor a limited testing program to "determine prevalence of infected horses geographically."

Such a testing program, according to Shelhamer, would "require the full cooperation of horse owners" to include surveillance of animals not previously given the Coggins Test, which can determine the existence of any suspected infection in a given area of the Commonwealth.

He stressed that the Bureau of Animal Industry would provide the Coggins Test at no charge to owners of exposed horses. He further recommended that no horses be shown at fairs or other events without a negative Coggins Test, and that no horse be purchased by owners or breeders unless the test has been administered and proven negative.

Requests for participation in the sample testing program should be directed to the Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pa. 17120, or by calling 717-783-5301.

ATTENTION: Cattlemen

For better daily gains at lower costs

Feed Bovotone 21

Higher feed costs and unstable market prices make it more important than ever for cattlemen to keep the cost of gain down. One sure way is to feed your own alfalfa haylage and Bovotone 21 from Vigortone.

Bovotone 21, in addition to delivering proper levels of important major minerals, trace elements and vitamins, contains abundant phosphorus to balance off the high calcium content of legume roughages.

Seldom will you need to feed any supplemental protein with a corn, haylage and Bovotone 21 program. Your cattle will do better, and your out-of-pocket costs will be cut dramatically.

Bovotone 110 and 111

Vigortone has two new pre-mixes for feedlot cattle, Bovotone 110 and 111. Both contain high levels of major minerals, trace elements and vitamins as well as non-protein nitrogen (NPN). They are particularly suited for grain and grain silage rations needing supplemental protein.

Bovotone 111 also contains MGA*, which produces a quieter bunch of heifers and promotes better daily gains.

See your Vigortone Serviceman now

If you're concerned about feeding costs, too, give your Vigortone serviceman a call. He has many up-to-date feeding programs that will help you save money.

You'll soon see why more cattlemen are feeding Vigortone — especially now.

This Allis-Chalmers 50 hp tractor was named the 5050 because it can split its workday between feed-lot/utility chores, and tending to row crops.

An 8-speed transmission offers 6 speeds under 10 mph lets you shift-on-the-roll in fully synchronized 3rd/4th and 7th/8th speeds, and has 2 reverse speeds. Also available with front wheel assist for 4-wheel traction. A 12-speed transmission is optional on the two-wheel drive. Both transmissions give you a going-home speed of 15.5 mph.

The 5050's many standard features include independent 540 gpm PTO. Both a hand and a foot throttle for operator convenience. Differential lock. Even power steering, adjustable cushioned seat, and a horn! Plus much more. Stop in. See how the 5050 raises the standards of the standard utility tractor.

This increase in volunteerism within the 4-H program counters the stereotype that people have less time or are less willing to give their time to help others. Each 4-H volunteer leader contributes an estimated 20 days per year to 4-H leadership responsibilities.

Energy, future of farms, topics at PennAg convention

By KENDACE BORRY

LANCASTER - Energy and the future of farms were the topics of a morning session of a PennAg Convention held recently. Experts on both subjects spoke to the group of agri-business men.

Francis Murray, a Georgetown University professor and qualified expert concerning energy, told that an understanding of the overall national energy system is needed. He compared figures from the past years of energy going into the system, converted, used, or lost, and predicted how these figures would change in the future while affecting the nation. He noted that with the existing programs in the United States, more energy is being used than can be produced within the country, and that the United States is now an energy deficiency nation.

According to Murray the energy demand is rising, due to the growing population, the growing labor force, (with an expected over 20 million workers by the year 1990), the increase of the standard of living, and the improvement of the environment. All are factors in the energy situation. He added that the industrial system is intensely energy oriented.

In order to keep a high standard of living without increasing the energy, there is a need of making use of the energy that is available, Murray said. His estimates showed that approximately half of the energy produced is lost in wasted heat, transition of energy changes, or other losses, and never used.

According to Penn State researchers Dr. Wesley R. Kreibel and Dr. James Beierlein, energy must be managed or the general public and businesses will bear the consequences. Companies need energy management, to plan and reduce the business's vulnerability to energy needs. The energy existing must be better utilized.

The two men told the group that they are in the process of trying to devise a model showing how much energy is used in getting the final product of food from the farmer to the consumer. According to their current figures, feed companies are using slightly less energy now than they did in 1972.

Farming and the space age was the topic of Homer K. Luttringer, from Sperry-New Holland, Pa. Basically, he speculated on how much space would be left for the farmer in the future.

Speaking on the American farmer in general, Luttringer commented that the farmer created the biggest evolution and revolution in the world, all through his productivity. The American farmer uses scientific methods, new farm equipment, improved plant varieties, and loves his work.

Luttringer believes that if all the prejudices and political taboos were forgotten, nobody in the world would go hungry. The world today should be able to feed eight times the world population, but this is not happening due to factors such as not all farmers being as productive as others, and the type of products which are being raised on farms.

The capacity for hard work and the farmer's ingenuity, Luttringer stated, is what keeps agri-business the largest industry of the world.

Predicting the future, Luttringer believes that equipment will be larger, with a higher capacity, while smaller farm equipment will be produced for the under-developed farmers, new crops will be made with higher yielding grains, and there will be fewer but bigger farmers.

Luttringer also added that the farm will remain a basic family unit, for the family is needed on the farm to keep it going, making a farm what it is.

Ohio farm takes Brown Swiss titles

HARRISBURG -- Top Acres Farm, St. Paris, Ohio, was named premier breeder and premier exhibitor for the second year at the 1977 Eastern National Brown Swiss show held Tuesday at the Farm Show complex as part of the 14th Annual Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show.

Top cow in the show was a three-year-old, "Top Acres Beauty Glare," named grand champion and senior champion female, and exhibited by the Top Acres Farm. Another Top Acres entry, six year old "Kilvrock Snow Storm," was named reserve grand reserve senior champion female.

Junior winners were a pair of senior yearling heifers. The junior champion female, "Top Acres Barb Dee," was exhibited by Top Acres, and the reserve junior champion, "La Rainbow Designing Gisela," was shown by La Rainbow Farms, New Knoxville, Ohio.

"Royal Hill Gemini J" took the honors as the grand champion bull for the third straight year. The three-

The reserve senior champion bull, "L-J Revival R," is a seven-year-old owned by the Sand Rock Farm, Rocky Ridge, Maryland. Reserve junior champion was "Blessing Lancer Ceasar," a bull calf owned by Blessing Farms, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

The premier sire award again went to "Welcome In Stretch," now deceased. His last owner was Curtis Breeding, Cary, Illinois.

The judge for the Eastern National Brown Swiss show was Vernon C. Hull of Strasburg, Virginia.

Rain hampers fieldwork

HARRISBURG - A second consecutive week of scattered showers limited the state's farmers to slightly over three days suitable for fieldwork during the week ending September 26, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The week was the wettest in nearly a year, and Erie reported almost four and a half inches of rainfall. With over ten inches, the northwest counties have already surpassed former records for September that stood for over 100 years.

Moisture supplies are rated as adequate to surplus, with "northern counties reporting mostly surplus moisture levels.

With negligent progress last week, tobacco harvest stands at 89 per cent complete, on a par with last year. Wet fields and high humidity are causing delay in the harvest.

Corn for grain is now 31 per cent mature in the state, putting the crop six days ahead of the 18 per cent mature of a year ago. By area, the crop is 38 per cent mature in the north, 31 per cent in central counties and 18 per cent mature in the south. Southern and central operators have harvested a few early fields for grain with some reporting 22 per cent moisture.

Corn silage harvest moved up to 48 per cent done, five days ahead of the 35 per cent of a year earlier. Where fields were muddy, operators resorted to using two tractors to pull harvesters. Operators remain optimistic about the grain crop if drying weather materializes and frost is avoided.

Wet soils delayed plowing which, at 70 per cent complete, is about the same as a year ago. What little progress was made last week was in southern counties.

With the vines killed,

xxx
Pennsylvania will collect more than $450 million in additional tax revenue through growth during fiscal 1977-78.

potato growers are standing by for dry fields to dig. Only a few fields were dug last week, and those were in the south.

Fall seeding made the most the most progress of the year last week. Wheat is now 26 per cent sown compared to 45 per cent last year. Barley sowing is 54 per cent done, the same as a year earlier. Southern counties showed the least progress in seeding last week.

Showers hurt hay quality during the week, as quality was rated mostly poor to fair. Alfalfa third cutting, at 80 per cent, showed little progress while the fourth cutting moved to 40 per cent. Clo-tim second cut made no progress. Pastures are providing an average amount of feed for late September.

IFYE bridges gap between Barbados and Pa.

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

YORK — It's a long way to Pennsylvania from Barbados in the West Indies. But Felicia Luke, a friendly and outgoing International 4-H Youth Exchange representative, is leaving her York County hosts with warm memories to bridge the gap between those two cultures.

Felicia, age 21, has been in the United States since June. She spent the first several weeks of her visit on an Iowa corn and soybean farm, and then traveled east to the Strasburg area. In early September, the Terry Shearer family, Abbottstown R1, welcomed her to York County; and her final exchange visit was with Robert Waltersdorff family, Hollywood Drive, York, and their five daughters.

Traveling as an IFYE participant is the culmination of Felicia's 4-H career in Barbados. As the leader of a community-type club, she works with home economics projects of cooking and sewing, is the project leader for her local garden club and serves as secretary of the St. Thomas-St. James 4-H district.

Barbados is the eastern most island in the West Indies, located a few hundred miles off the northeastern coast of Venezuela, South America. About 250,000 people live on its 166 square miles, where the main crop is sugar cane and the temperature year-round remains in the 75 to 80 degree vicinity.

"In Barbados we have 55 local 4-H clubs with a national total of 2200 members," explained Felicia, who is quite knowledgeable of the background of her country. "Very few of them, though, live on farms, maybe only a few hundred out of the total."

Most farms on the sunny island are family operations, with a relatively small acreage and a few head of family livestock, probably including some chickens and rabbits. The largest farming operations, according to Felicia, are the few big dairy setups.

"We have many pigs, though, because we eat a lot of pork," she adds. A special breed of sheep is also raised for meat purposes only, since wool is not a commodity in demand in the always-warm climate.

Programs offered in the Barbados 4-H are heavily supported by the government through the Ministry of Agriculture. While some parents may supply their children's project animals or garden space, frequently a Bigger milk checks start with the right vacuum pump.

A Surge Alamo could improve your production a pint-per-cow per day.

There's probably not a single piece of dairy equipment that's more important to good milk production than an efficient vacuum pump.

Here's why: You can be feeding 'em right, breeding 'em right, doing everything you can to be a better manager, only to have a worn or faulty vacuum pump rob you of thousands of pounds of milk per year.

Ask us to run a levograph on your system soon. If it just needs repairing, we'll give you an estimate. If it needs replacing, we can recommend the right Alamo for the job. Alamo pumps are now available in 20, 40, 60, 75, 100 and 200 cfm models.

It's the pump that sets the pace with such valuable features as continuous flood-type lubrication, exclusive oil reclaimer system, large oil reserve, and more. Call us today.

President Carter praises 4-H

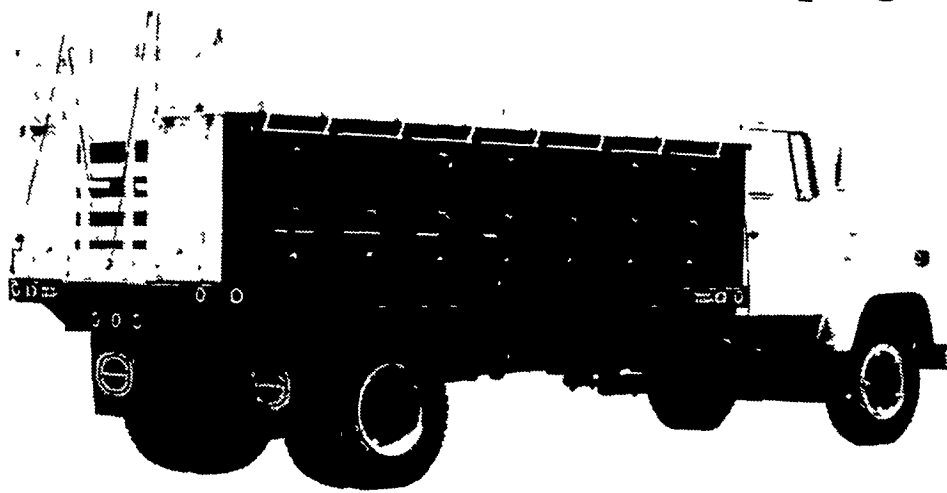

National 4-H Week, 1977

My lifelong experiences on a farm have given me a deep personal appreciation for the vast importance to our country of the 4-H program. I have watched with the greatest interest and pride many, many young participants in 4-H activities, and I have seen how their experiences have helped them develop practical skills and establish mature goals.

"4-H is Freedom To Be" is a most appropriate theme for an effort that reaches out to all young Americans -- rural and urban -- from all racial, cultural, economic and social backgrounds. For many it is the door to a lifetime of personal growth and self-fulfillment.

I welcome this opportunity to challenge 4-H'ers and their capable leaders to continue in their search for new knowledge and fresh approaches to the problems facing their communities. By your involvement you greatly enrich the lives of all Americans.

FARM DRAINAGE IS A GOOD INVESTMENT

HERE ARE 10 REASONS WHY:

1. Better soil aeration results from good drainage. This permits deeper and more extensive root development and a more favorable environment for beneficial soil micro organisms and earthworms.
2. Better soil moisture conditions with good drainage permit more efficient operation of tillage, planting and harvesting equipment. There is less chance of destroying soil tilth due to working soil when it is too wet.
3. Longer growing seasons can be achieved with good drainage due to earlier possible planting dates.
4. An increased supply of nitrogen can be obtained from the soil where water tables are lowered by a drainage system.
5. Soils warm up more quickly in the spring when free water is removed by a drainage system.
6. Certain toxic substances and disease organisms are removed from the soil due to better drainage and better aeration.
7. Soil erosion can be reduced on a well-drained soil by increasing its capacity to hold rainfall, resulting in less runoff.
8. Deeper root development enables plants to better withstand summer droughts. High water tables in the spring due to poor drainage cause shallow root development and a smaller soil volume from which plants can obtain moisture and nutrients.
9. Valuable livestock water supplies are obtained by draining hillside seeps and piping the water to stock water tanks.
10. Increased crop yields and improved crop quality result from favorable soil moisture conditions with good drainage.

combination of government and private contributions give youngsters the basic 4-H tools. For instance, a new 4-H member may be given a hen or a rabbit, and a starter supply of feed. He is then expected to return one animal from the offspring back into the program to be used to give a start to another youngster.

"Female project animals are always given out, to keep the chain in operation," Felicia explains. "And the children are very good about returning the one offspring back into the program."

Growing plots are made available, even in city areas. There the government will set aside a portion of land, divide it out to area clubs, and let the leaders offer small plots to interested members. The youthful gardeners are expected to grow their plants from seed, and keep detailed records, including their labor cost, to determine profit or loss on the project. Exhibiting of all projects is done only at achievement meetings; there are no fairs for youthful competition.

According to Felicia, Barbados rates near the top of the world in literacy levels, with about 98 per cent of the population educated. There are no grade levels in the high schools, and both public and private schools are available. Government funding is available for advanced education, in the form of scholarships, with the recipient helping to pay back the support using his education and experience in helping and teaching others. Many adult evening classes are also available, funded under government grants.

"Women are equal in some respects," notes the IFYE ambassador, "and most of them do work outside the home. There are day care centers for the children, with a charge for those who wish to pay, but under a socialized program for workers who can't."

At age 18, a Barbados citizen is considered a legal adult and can vote under the English parliament, a type of government headed by a prime minister.

Felicia encountered only a few minor problems adjusting to life in the United States. In Iowa the temperatures reached 108 degrees F. with accompanying high humidity, while the last days of her York County visit saw the thermometer plummet toward the 40-degree F mark.

"They suggest that we bring warm sweaters," she laughed, "and now I know why."

American cooking was also a change from the Barbados liberal use of herbs and spices in all dishes. Rice, cooked with peas, and pork are mainstays of the island diet, although fast food franchises have brought Kentucky fried chicken and soft ice cream into the food picture as well.

Felicia hopes to return to the States again in the future, and is quick to praise Americans.

"Here everyone works, and no job is degrading to them it seems. I've met college educated people who are willing to take any job just to earn themselves a living," she adds. "Your country is very well respected and liked by us."

Sheer size of American agriculture has probably most impressed the 4-H visitor. She recalled the large Iowa hog raising operations and the acres and acres of trees that amazed her during a visit to Minnesota.

"Poultry is very popular at home, but I've never seen anything like the huge operations here," Felicia marveled, shaking her head almost in disbelief.

The Waltersdorf family maintains two caged eye operations and egg packing facilities. Feeling right at home after carrying 4-H poultry projects, Felicia pitched right in with helping in the egg processing house and helping to care for the flock of two dozen sheep. While visiting the Sheare family earlier, she had been introduced into the ins and outs of raising thousands of turkeys, visited a New Oxford hatchery, and toured a turkey processing plant.

With her October 27 departure date looming ahead, Felicia plans to spend a few days visiting an uncle in Connecticut before the IFYE members are due back to the National 4-H center in Washington, D.C.

Although she was working as a nurse when she left Barbados, the last few months have helped Felicia decide to pursue a career in the agriculture field when she returns home. Her plans to reach that goal will include night course studies at a technical school, with a goal of eventually going into Extension work, where she can best give back to others what 4-H has taught her.

Weather-resistant RAMIK® Brown rodenticide keeps shape, freshness, taste, potency.

Count on a long period of excellent control.

Potent treatment costs little in comparison with loss of just a few of your trees.

What's one of your trees worth?
What will a bushel of fruit bring?

Figure what your loss would be from just one dead tree—root-pruned or girdled and killed by orchard mice (pine or meadow voles).

Then figure the application of highly effective Ramik Brown weather resistant rodenticide. You'll find Ramik well worth it!

Ramik bait is 26% protein

As food sources diminish after harvest, meadow voles go all out for highly palatable, apple flavored, mouse-sized Ramik pellets—and leave your trees alone. Most other foods simply do not attract rodents as high-protein Ramik does.

The quiet killer

Ramik Brown pellets contain a small amount of the well-known anticoagulant, diphacinone—a killing agent used by professional exterminators. Diphacinone thins out the blood so that the vole bleeds internally, painlessly, and dies.

Because diphacinone is in such low concentration, the vole does not react violently. Ramik does not "signal" its killing ingredient. Chance of bait shyness is much lessened.

Ramik lasts long, does the job

A special patented manufacturing process helps Ramik pellets retain shape, palatability and potency, even under high moisture conditions. Also chemically treated for mold- and insect resistance, weather-resistant Ramik keeps fresh over a comparatively long period.

Get ready to bait with Ramik Brown

As it says on the label, apply Ramik pellets after harvest and before snow. Ramik will knock down the hungry vole population. Later, when the snow recedes, a second application can be made to control high density populations or the voles that may have reinfested the vacated tunnels.

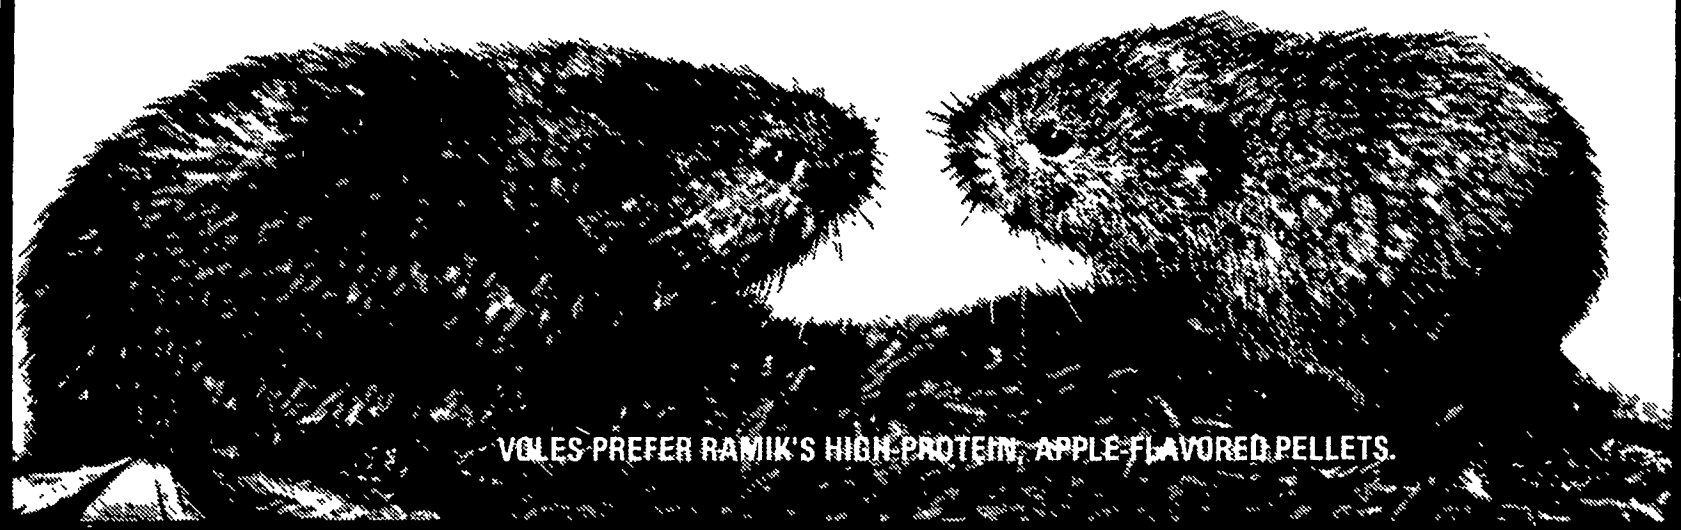

Ramik is a pesticide. Handle it as you would any other orchard chemical. Never allow exposure of drums to non-target species. Do not expose bait in small piles, or in a constricted pattern. The bait should be scattered evenly over the orchard floor at the rate specified on the label. Reseal any unused portion of the bait and store in a closed storage area.

Registered for use only in Colorado, Idaho, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, Virginia and Washington.

Farm home tour offered October 15

By KENDACE BORRY
MOUNT JOY - A farm home tour of seven homes, all over 100 years old, is planned for October 15, by the members of Lancaster County Farm Women Society 27. Beginning at one p.m., the tours will be conducted throughout the afternoon and early evening by the farm women members and hostesses.

All the farm homes are located in the Mount Joy area in Northern Lancaster County, and the tour can begin in any home. Visitors will travel from home to home at their leisure, with special features and door prizes being offered in each home.

The Lancaster County Dairy Princess, Lancaster County Poultry Queen, and Lancaster County Beef Queen will be present in some of the homes to meet visitors. Tickets for the tour can be purchased from any hostess for $2.50 on the day of the tour.

The homes which will be open on the tour includes "Peaceful Grove Farm," the home of Albert and Kathryn Fry. The brick buildings were built in 1868, and the five bay farm house features a walk-in fireplace. The house is furnished with early American and Victorian age antiques, many which come from past generations of the family. Included in the house are a butcher bench coffee table, a Victorian sofa, platform rocker, walnut drop leaf table, corner cupboard, and a 1771 Kass. Dairy product door prizes will be offered at this farm.

Another home on the tour, built around 1850, is a log house with a later stone addition, now the home of the Roy Sauder family, who did most of their own remodeling. Included in the tour will be an original corner cupboard, butcher bench, and an 1885 washing machine. Also pipeline milking in the dairy barn can be visited between 4:30 and 6:30 p.m. Cake decorating will also be featured and visitors can register for a birthday month doll cake.

The home of James and Martha Garber, built in the early 1800's, features sandstone window sills, wide center hallway with an archway and an open stairway leading to the third floor. Two of the originally built fireplaces are still in working condition. Many crafts and floral arrangements, along with the wide variety of antiques, will be on view at this farm. The Lancaster County Poultry Queen will be present at this farm and a dressed capon will be offered as a door prize.

Owned by Wayne and Yvonne Miller, the Green Acres Guest Farm, dates from 1844 and is known as one of the first blueprint houses in the area. The 12 room house is furnished with Victorian and early American antiques of which many are family heirlooms. A quilting bee will be in

Berks 4-H'er wins trip to Chicago

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter
REHRERSBURG - It could be easy to be just another H'er, lost in the overwhelmingly large 4-H membership in Berks County, but not so for Janis Malsbury. Janis has been involved in 4-H for eight years and in that time has managed to win recognition not only on the county level, but on the state level as well.

This year she will have the honor of traveling to Chicago to participate in the National 4-H contests which will be held November 27 to December 3. Janis became eligible by winning the Home Management Award on the state level earlier this year. Accompanying her will be Debbie Angstadt, the only other Berks 4-H'er to go.

Janis also won a blue award at the State 4-H Days for judging clothing and textiles this Summer. It was her fourth year to be able to compete on the state level, which she enjoys very much. The previous year, Janis also judged clothing and textiles, winning a red. In other years at State Days this 17-year old 4-H'er was involved with demonstrations.

Janis first got involved with 4-H by the encouragement of a friend who participated for a year before Janis joined. The club is called the Rehersburg Adventures and is mainly involved with foods and clothing. Of the two, Janis prefers working with clothing. She has made many of her own outfits and has also sewn pillows, curtains and has helped her club to quilt. Janis also designs many of the clothes she makes and has won awards with many of them.

"4-H has helped to build up my confidence," Janis told Lancaster Farming. "It is a good way to get involved, I have encouraged my sisters to join." Her sisters, Judy, 15, and Jayne, 13, are involved and are also gaining recognition with their own projects. The Malsburys have three sewing machines in their house to keep these girls going! This year at the county 4-H fair held at Kutztown, Jayne and Judy both won awards. These young ladies also have a brother, Jeff, who is eight years old and in the third grade.

Janis is a senior at Tulpehocken High School and plans to continue her education in computer programming, explaining that she has always liked to work with numbers.

The Malsburys have a dairy farm but Janis has not been helping too much lately, being very busy with other activities. Besides 4-H, Janis is on the varsity tennis team at school and has also worked on the school newspaper. Another sport that Janis likes is basketball and this year she is a gym leader.

If these activities aren't enough to keep this young lady busy then her job at an ice cream stand is. Janis has worked all Summer and will continue until November.

Janis has held many offices in her 4-H club over the years she has been a member. They include, president, vice-president, secretary, and news reporter. During the last two years she has been secretary of County Council, and has belonged on the Council for four years.

Janis Malsbury keeps herself surrounded with varied interests.

Janis was also awarded Fair. With her ability and another honor this year due to her accomplishments she will likely come home from Chicago with more 4-H Girl at the Kutztown awards.

Milk order hearing set

CLEVELAND, OHIO - The U. S. Department of Agriculture will hold a public hearing starting Oct. 12 in Cleveland, Ohio, to consider enlarging the marketing area and amending payment, pooling, and certain administrative provisions of the Eastern Ohio-Western Pennsylvania federal milk marketing order. The hearing will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Port O'Call Motor Inn, 16161 Brookpark Road, Cleveland.

Herbert L. Forest, dairy official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service said the hearing was requested by Milk, Inc., a cooperative association representing a substantial number of producers.

USDA will evaluate the hearing evidence and decide whether any changes in the order should be recommended. Approval by more than two-thirds of producers operating under the order is needed to make any changes in the order.

Copies of the hearing notice detailing the proposals may be obtained from Market Administrator C C Taylor, P O Box 30128, Cleveland, Ohio 44130, or from the Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D C 20250.

progress at this farm. Also, there is an antique shop is located in the barn and will be opened on the day of the tour. The Lancaster County Beef Queen will be present in this home. Door prizes offered at this place will be a bologna and a gift certificate for the antique shop.

The 16 rambling stone house of Rocky Acre Farm which is now the home of Galen and Eileen Benner and their family, features a walk-in fireplace, and has each room filled with antiques and family heirlooms. There are five working fireplaces in this house. A windmill stands in the front yard. The Benners share their home with tourists and the door prize at the farm will be overnight accommodations in the master bedroom which features a hand-painted bedroom suite and a large fireplace. The German Art of scheren-schnitte and a pressed flower demonstration will be offered.

Over the years, since the early 1700's when it was built, the Springhouse has been used as a dwelling, a butcher shop and a place for soap making. Two years ago it was purchased by the families of Jim and Joanne, and Luke and Barbara Brubaker. Special attractions of the home is a large round table originally owned by Senator Duffy. The dwelling is made of stone and brick and built into the side of the hill. Wooden spouting and deep windowsills are included along with plaster that has both hair and straw in it. The farm women will be serving refreshments at the springhouse and Cindy Brubaker will be showing her artwork.

The final home included on the tour is a nine room stone home of John and Mable Hershey which has been the Hershey homestead since the 1880's. Deeds show that the home was built in the mid-1700's. Included in the tour will be an original corner cupboard, fireplaces, and many antiques. Noted on the farm is the fact that the water for the farm comes from a springhouse located at the edge of the yard that has never run dry. Also, a chair caning demonstration will be offered at this farm. And for those visitors which arrive between 3 and 5 p.m., a special feature is viewing the gathering of eggs from 45,000 laying hens with the modern day egg collecting equipment in the egg room. The door prize at this home will be a drawing for 15 dozen jumbo eggs.

This is the first year that Farm Women Society 27 has offered such a tour and the money raised from it will be used to finance the club's various programs. The tour offers visitors an unique opportunity to view Lancaster County farm homes decorated by farm women and showing the farm influence.

For more information about the tour, interested persons may contact Mrs. Wayne Miller at 717-653-4028.

Comments sought on egg order

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture is calling for comments on a proposal to amend regulations to the Egg Research and Promotion Order. Under the proposed changes, producer-handlers must forward directly to the American Egg Board assessments on their nest-run (unsized and ungraded) eggs sold to other handlers. Producer-handlers still would be required to pay directly to the Board assessments on eggs that they grade, carton or break.

The time period in which producers can apply for a refund from the American Egg Board also would be changed. Under the proposal, refund applications would have to be mailed within 90 days after the end of the calendar month during which the assessment is due and collectable. Presently, applications must be mailed within 90 days after the end of the calendar month during which the assessment is paid.

Comments on the proposal will be accepted until Oct. 26. They should be submitted in duplicate to the Hearing-Clerk, USDA, Room 1077-S, Washington, D.C. 20250 where they will be available for public inspection from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Hay needed in Md.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. - The Maryland Department of Agriculture's Division of Marketing is implementing a program entitled "Operation Maryland Haylift". Its purpose is to unite Maryland farmers who have hay or straw for sale with those in dire need in that commodity.

In order to alleviate the plight of those farmers with inadequate supplies, the MDA Division of Marketing is compiling a hay and straw directory. Currently, MDA marketing specialist Brad Powers is seeking farms where hay and straw are available. Persons with surplus stocks are asked to notify him in writing by October 15. The letter should contain the person's name and address, including the county in which he resides, and a telephone number. Other pertinent facts should consist of what types hay and/or straw are for sale and the amount (bales, tons, etc.) being offered.

Letters of notification are to be mailed to "Operation Maryland Haylift", Maryland Department of Agriculture, Division of Marketing, Annapolis, Maryland 21401. There is no charge for the service, and the directory is scheduled for distribution to farmers later this Fall.

Experts list ways to maintain bees in Winter

DOVER, Del. - Whether maintaining healthy, well-keeping honeybees is a fed colonies through the hobby or a profession, Winter is essential.

Beekeepers who plan ahead for overwintering their bees are managing them in such a way that they will produce a maximum amount of honey next Spring, according to Charles Mason, University of Delaware entomologist. If their colonies don't contain plenty of honey by October 15, Mason recommends that beekeepers consider feeding their bees, since by that time the cold weather has started and the honey flow has pretty well ended. Bees keep warm during the Winter by forming a ball-shaped cluster around the frames of the brood chamber - or bottom section - of the hive. They vibrate their wings to generate heat, periodically exchanging positions around this "ball." The queen of course, remains in the middle. On warm days workers may go out on short flights to relieve themselves but as a rule, they don't fly at all when the temperature is below 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

county Extension office or any beekeeping association. Remember, however, to only give your bees candy when you know you can't feed them sugar-syrup but you can see they don't have enough honey.

The second alternative is to combine two or more weak colonies to make strong ones. Mason recommends this method over the former but suggests that the beekeeper place a piece of newspaper between the colonies being combined to keep the bees from fighting with each other. That way, the bees get so involved in the joint effort to remove the newspaper that they generally accept one another without hesitating when the paper is finally gone.

"Some beekeepers seem to want to work with quantities of hives rather than quantities of bees," says Mason. "Actually, you get more honey out of one strong colony than you would out of two weak ones. By combining the two, you take your Winter loss on one colony in November rather than losing both colonies by the end of the Winter."

Mason says to feed the bees until they have enough honey to get them through the remainder of the Winter - usually four to five gallons of sugar-syrup. However, he warns, it's not a good idea to feed solution after November 15 as it may crystallize in the cold air.

"If the bees still don't have enough honey by November 15, you can do one of two things," says Mason. "The first is not highly recommended, but it is a viable alternative - that is to let the bees go through what honey they have and then feed them a sugar candy - similar to rock candy."

Recipes for this mixture are available through the

In fact, he adds, studies on two-queen systems have shown that combined colonies can exceed the production of two separate colonies by 20 per cent. There seems to be more of a cooperative effort when there are more bees to collect the nectar.

In any case, by starting now to check your hives and make sure they have plenty of honey, you avoid the hassle of feeding them with the onset of cold weather. As Mason says, don't be too greedy with your bees - if you don't remove too much honey now, they will have enough to get them through the Winter on their own.
